ANNOUNCEMENT.

This is the first number of the Daily Nebraskan, which will be published regularly, hereafter, during the college year. While the editor and manager have no apologies to make for it, they realize that it is far from being perfect. Every number hereafter will be an improvement upon those which preceded it.

The Daily Nebraskan is the natural result of the constant development along the line of college journalism in The University of Nebraska, since the days of the monthly Hesperian Student.

It is not necessary to outline an "editorial policy;" no one would remember it or even give it any consideration. The Daily stands for the best interests of the university along every line. It may be relied upon for whatever assistance it may be able to give to any worthy cause.

The plan of organization of the Hesperian Publishing Co. insures a paper which will be thoroughly representative. The board of directors is composed of men who are interested in the success of a daily paper, and it is their purpose to select for positions on the paper persons who have shown ability—and what is more important—a willingness to work.

The staff editors and reporters will be selected according to merit. Any student who is interested in newspaper work and wishes to become connected with the Daily should address the editor-in-chief at once.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEET.

On Saturday afternoon the directors of the Hesperian Publishing Co. held their first meeting and organized. Mr. J. W. Crabtree, inspector of accredited schools, was elected president, and Mr. Geo. L. Towne was elected secretary of the board and treasurer of the company.

Sterling H. McCaw was elected editor-in-chief, and John A. Kees business manager. Both have filled the position of assistant editor of the Nebraskan-Hesperian during the past year.

It was decided that one number of the daily should be issued on June 18.

The Hesperian-Publishing Co. is incorporated under the laws of the state of Nebraska, and is composed entirely of students, alumni, and professors of the University of Nebraska.

There are still a few shares not yet subscribed. Any one desiring to become a stockholder should address the business manager at once.

AN INNOVATION.

Mr. J. L. Moore, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. has just returned from a two weeks' tour of some of the principal high schools of the state. In eastern colleges, as Yale, Harvard, and Princeton, they send out men to visit the various preparatory schools to meet the men who intend to come to school the following year. Mr. Moore visited the Omaha, South Omaha, Blair, Fremont, Columbus, Central City, Kearney, Hastings, Aurora, York, Falls City, Auburn, and Pawnee City high schools, in all of which he was well received. No attempt has heretofore been made to reach these men before they come here in September. This year the Y. M. C. A., with the co-operation of the executive office of the university, has attempted to reach all the young men coming from the high schools of the state next fall to take the college course. The method with the larger high schools is to make a talk to the members of the junior and senior classes of the school and then to meet personally all those who intend to come here next fall or the year afterwards. The benefits of a college education are presented in a good light and many are persuaded to try to secure such an education who would probably not have made the attempt but for such encouragement. Ways and means of securing a college education are freely discussed and some who think they do not have the opportunity to come are shown their mistake. The interest taken in the young men coming here and the aid given them in getting started is clearly outlined to the prospective students. This could be done better, perhaps, personally in the large high schools than in smaller schools, where letters only are sent. Mr. Moore says that many of the superintendents and principals, as well as the parents of the students are surprised that the university has such an active religious life. This is another factor tending to break down that old time prejudice against the morality of our university. The fact that the Y. M. C. A. helps the newcomer in every way and looks after his welfare mentally, morally, and physically will cause many parents to send their sons here. This is a great aid to the university proper in enabling them to estimate the number

THE NEWBY AFFAIR AGAIN.

Tuesday three members of the senior law class were cited to appear before Chancellor Andrews and show cause why their diplomas should not be withheld for complicity in the Newby hazing incident of a few weeks ago. The names of the students implicated are Pinkerton, Whelan, and Deal.

It is said this action on the part of the chancellor is the result of orders from the board of regents to investigate the matter. Two of the men have made sworn statements to the effect that they were not connected with the matter and the third has signed a simple statement to that effect. They all claim to be able to prove alibis.

The report is that the university authorities have the names of all those involved in the affair and will make it exceedingly uncomfortable for them.

H. L. Sams, formerly a student at the university, is spending commencement week in Lincoln. He has been superintendent at Red Cloud during the past year, and will be at the same place next year.
