SECRETARY COLTON CONFERS

With the Y. M. C. A. Plans Outlined for Bible and Mission Study. Sunday Talk to Men.

E. T. Colton, International College Secretary for the West, arrived at the University Saturday morning for a two day's visit with the Association here. At first it seemed unfortunate that he should have been scheduled here at a time when the interests of our young men were so much centered in the Minnesota-Nebraska game, but notwithstanding this, he found Secretary Hubbell and several of the Cabinet members here and preparations were at once made for committee meetings and private interviews.

The forenoon was largely taken up by interviews with the Cabinet and points of interest relative to our Association were discussed. At 1:30 Mr. Colton met the Bible Study Committee, which, thro the efforts of the chairman, had been already doing very efficient work. One hour was spent in this very interesting conference, and the Committee, which was well represented, will be able to still further systematize and carry out their important duties.

Mr. Colton is constantly visiting th largest universities and colleges from the Pacific Coast east to Illinois and Michigan, with the express purpose of getting the best plans of Association work and then giving them out again to other associations. As a result, he is well posted on Association work in general and committee plans as well and his suggestions are very valuable. At 2:30, the Missionary Committee met Mr. Colton to plan with him its line of work for the present year and also to decide on the nature of the Sunday meeting.

The Committee expects to equip a reading table in the rooms with the current missionary magazines and interesting and instructive books on missions to the reading of which all men are welcome.

From 3:30 to 4:30, Mr. Colton, who is an ex-football man, was in the chapel and read with interest the bulletins of the game in the north.

Yesterday was "Mission Study" Sunday and at 4 p. m. about forty men gathered at the rooms and listened to one of the most earnest and emphatic addresses that has been given before the Association for some time. Mr. Colton spoke on "A Call to Missionary intelligence." He began by remarking that altho the Nebraskans had seemingly nearly all gone to Minnesota they had evidently forgotten to take touchdowns and the weather with them.

Mr. Colton said that nearly the entire student body of our country decide upon their life work with practically no knowledge either of the attainments or the needs of twenty-sixths of the world's population. He asked for a wider view point on the part of students.

He showed that a man instead of wasting his life if he enters foreign work, no matter in what vocation, is much more apt to waste it or at least to have his influence for good, dwarfed in this country where every position is sought after by scores of men.

Finally he showed that the call to missionary activity was no greater upon such men as Paton, Pitkin and Brockman than it is upon other men, and the larger life which it led them to seek and know ought to energize all men to intelligently seek the place of largest influence and power in the salvation of the world.
