The Daily Nebraskan is being sent to all subscribers on the old Nebraskan-Hesperian list. Those subscribers to the Nebraskan-Hesperian who do not desire the Daily will please notify the manager by card as soon as possible. Where no notification is received it is understood that the subscriber wishes the paper to continue.

One of the most noticeable and most marked improvements for some time has made its appearance on the campus. In other words the "waste paper cans." With conveniences so easily placed in reach of the students there should be no need of further cautionings on the part of the Chancellor in regard to the untidiness of the University grounds.

There is quite a temptation for the average student in hurrying to and from classes to carelessly drop a fragment of paper or other light material. This done, the wind drives it about over the campus and together with other such rubbish piles it in the corners that very materially spoil the beauty of the University's home.

All such forward and efficient means to improve the general appearance of the University grounds should meet with universal approval.

COLLEGE NOTES

Beloit (Wis.) has recently started its training table for the football men.

An epoch in the history of Ann Arbor was recently passed when the corner stone of the new medical building was placed. This is claimed to be one of the finest buildings of its kind in the country.

The total number of students at Yale this year will be about 2,750—an increase of 200 over last year.

In Iowa university the battalion lacks some commissioned officers. Notice has been given to the seniors that those who are eligible to such office can submit their names for application to the place.

It has been the custom at Beloit, Wis., that at chapel services those present should leave in order of their seniority. The old custom is in danger, and a movement is on hand to recreate the old-time custom.

Secret practice has been indulged in at Michigan for the last week and the rooters there, it is reported, have become impatient to see what was going on.

The senior class at Illinois University has challenged the faculty to a football game. The question is: "Will there be a game?"

California had a celebration last week to rouse football enthusiasm. The features were robes-de-noir and a big bon-fire.

The Stanford (Cal.) Daily has recently published a complete report of all the expenses during commencement week.

The University band at Leland Stanford has a football team.

Plans are being formulated at the University of California whereby there shall be a University cap, worn only by the members of the three upper classes.

Eighty young ladies are members of the California tennis association.

California has a rooters' club which is also affiliated with a glee club.

Plans are at present being formulated to establish a chapter of the Sigma Xi fraternity in the University of California. The Sigma Xi is a scholarship fraternity, analogous to the Phi Beta Kappa, but confined exclusively to those engaged in scientific work. Membership in the eastern chapters is granted for marked ability in scientific research rather than for a uniformly high record in class work, and it is aimed to apply the same test in the local chapter. A simultaneous movement is being instituted at Stanford and it is hoped that in the near future charters will be granted for chapters in both institutions.

The existence of a scientific scholarship society has been found to be a powerful influence in stimulating scientific research work in the undergraduate body, and Sigma Xi, although a rather new fraternity has made rapid growth in the East.—Daily Californian.

There was a time when women in the University would have been astonished had they been able to look forward to this day to see some of the ways in which their successors would get rid of money. It is not very long ago that an oyster supper in a rented or borrowed room was regarded as ample celebration for an initiation. Today the spreads on such occasions are elaborate banquets. Then, the idea of one girl taking another for a drive or making her gifts of flowers would have been decidedly novel. In 1901 the livery and florists bills of the various sororities for the first week of the rushing season would endow a small scholarship.—Michigan Daily News.

Mr. Miller will meet students wishing to consult him about credit, Tuesday. This will be the last opportunity to arrange such credits.

The mandolin club of Ames, Iowa, will give a concert for the benefit of athletics.

The engineering society will hold its regular meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30. Besides the election of officers there will be considerable business to transact, the most important being in regard to the expected report of the annual committee appointed last year to solicit contributions and to gather information to be used for the first publication of the Engineering students of the University of Nebraska. If apparent enthusiasm does not deceive, the proposition of the Engineering annual will be unaimously agreed upon and a board of editors and managers elected at once.

The senior laws met yesterday and elected Mr. Anderson captain of the football team.

The observatory was crowded last night by visitors who took a look at Saturn through the big telescope. Last night was the regular visitor's evening.

C.S. Jensen, director of an academy near Breklum, Germany, came through Lincoln yesterday on his vacation tour in America. When shown through the University he expressed considerable surprise and satisfaction at the methods in use here. The engineering laboratories seemed to him an almost ideal school and entirely satisfied his notion of the proverbial practicability of Americans.

During the summer vacation the University herbarium received a considerable addition to the "Williams Collection," aggregating probably 1,500 to 2,000 specimens. They are all lichens, and will be added to the collection deposited last spring. This makes the herbarium of Nebraska one of the richest in the lichens of any in America.
