An important step towards the organization of a rooters' club on a permanent basis has been taken in the calling of a meeting of representatives from the different University organizations, at the Alpha Theta Chi house tonight.

Without a doubt the only practical way to interest a very large body of students in the movement is through their organization. The senior class made a very laudable beginning by the appointment of a leader for a senior rooters' club, but the movement ought to extend farther than any one class. It should include every loyal student in the institution.

The movement to be inaugurated tonight ought to be very effective. The organization can be completed and made effective by a small body of representatives. It can then be extended to cover the whole student body.

Every fraternity and society should see to it that at least two of its members attend the meeting tonight.

Riders of bicycles should exercise a great deal of care while riding on the campus sidewalks. The other day, during the interval between classes when the walks were crowded a rider attempted to use one of the sidewalks for a cycle path and the result was that a pedestrian was quite severely bruised. The tacit permission which the University authorities give to cyclists to use the walks ought not to be abused. The walks are primarily for pedestrians and the use of them by that class should not be made dangerous.

Minnesota has come to the conclusion that Iowa is bluffing, and that after all the latter has a good team and is prepared to put up a strong fight a week from Saturday. With this idea in mind the Gophers have taken double precautions and are redoubling their efforts to put their team in the prime of condition. The contest will be a battle royal and Nebraska will watch it from afar with a great deal of interest. The secret wish of every Nebraskan is that Minnesota may treat

Iowa to the same kind of a game they did us, only worse.

In their desire to do something sensational, the Chicago and Omaha papers decided to kill Captain Westover. The reports sent out from Omaha to the effect that the Nebraska chief was on the verge of eternity are as ridiculous as they are false. The Nebraska team was ready to play the Omaha Medics and the game would have come off had not the latter team disbanded. The reports were evidently sent out to shield the Omaha team and throw the responsibility for breaking the schedule on the University.

COLLEGE NOTES.

At Stanford university (Cal.) they have decided to hire, if possible, an opera house on November 9. The play will probably be "The Man From Mexico," and the proceeds of the evening will go into the athletic board treasury.

Harvard has the largest freshman class in its history this year. The number is 533.

The class of '04 of Ann Arbor went in a body to the Northwestern-Michigan game.

The program of the bicentennial celebration at Yale has recently been published. The celebration will extend for four days from October 20.

Wisconsin found itself in the toils of a rush a few days ago. It is said to be the largest one in the university's history. The freshmen were victorious.

Ann Arbor had a fancy dress party last week in the University armory. The amusement was dancing. About two hundred were present.

Indiana university is having trouble in raising money to meet the athletic expenses. That not enough assessments are paid is the principal trouble.—Ex.

The University of Wisconsin has increased from 481 students in 1879 to nearly 3,000 students this year.—Ex.

At a dinner of the Harvard club in San Francisco, Harvard graduates from the early fifties until the present year were represented.—Ex.

The University authorities are taking very rigid measures respecting military drill. It is said that no one will be graduated who has not completed the two years' drill. Physical disability and conscientious scruples are the only excuses that will be accepted.

Manager Carter of the senior football team is arranging a game with Ashland high school.

Omaha high school will play Minneapolis central high school eleven late in November. She will have a chance to retrieve the defeat of the Varsity. The game will be played in Omaha.

Three football elevens are practicing on Nebraska field daily, at the chapel hour. The freshman, sophomore and senior teams are all showing up well. The juniors have not put a team in the field so far this year.

Carl Shimer of Denver has been pledged to Phi Kappa Psi.

Over at the green-house the chrysanthemums are coming into bloom. There are about thirty-five different varieties, among which are the Timothy Eaton and Colonel Appleton, received this year. They have been imported at great expense and were the two most popular flowers in the east last year.
