THREE CENTS

VARSAITY PLAYS FAST

Snappy Practice on Gridiron Yesterday--Sophomores beat the Freshmen in a Close Contest.

The practice of the Varsity was very fast last night and the men are all in the pink of condition. The men were all out, but Kingsbury and Koehler were kept out of the scrimmages. Captain Westover filled his position at tackle having recovered sufficiently from his lameness, to allow him to play without danger of an injury which would keep him out of the Haskell Indian game on Thanksgiving day.

After a short signal practice in which the plays were run through with a dash and a hurry, the team took a few minutes rest, then lined up against the scrubs. McDonald kicked to Drain who returned ten yards. The Varsity then worked the pig skin steadily down the field for a touch down. No sensational playing was done in making this score but it was made by steady line bucks and short end runs. Drain kicked goal. Time about 4 minutes. After the next kick-off the Varsity pushed the ball down to the Scrubs' fifteen yard line when it was lost on a fumble. Then the Scrubs were allowed to advance the ball if they could. But they could do nothing with the Varsity line and after six successive line bucks and attempted end runs, McDonald punted. On the exchange of punts Pillsbury had decidedly the best of the bargain and a few minutes later the second score was made. Pillsbury punted out and Drain kicked goal. The practice closed with a short run.

SOPHOMORES AND FRESHMEN PLAY.

The game played between the Sophomore and Freshman class teams yesterday was a very pretty exhibition of football. The teams are very evenly matched and they played in dead earnest. Both teams are very heavy for class teams and they put up a superior article of football. They played only one half and that was not enough to decide which is the better of the two teams as the Sophomores could only score a safety against their opponents, although the play was largely in Freshman territory. The Sophomores were able to work the ball to within a few yards of the Freshman goal and there they stopped. After the three attempts at scoring the Freshmen would relieve them of the ball and punt it out of danger.

Bridge and Hood, right half and quarter back of the Sophomores, deserve especial mention on account of their work in the game. Bridge is a fast and steady man and never failed to advance the ball when called upon.

Some dispute has arisen in Lincoln high school football circles as to who are the football champions of Iowa and Nebraska.

The team that played in '99, were champions then, and then, and the team this year being an entirely different aggregation claim the same honor.

Each team is unwilling to share the honor with the other, so tomorrow will witness a battle royal between them on Nebraska Field. The game will be called at 3 o'clock and an admission of 25 cents will be charged.

HOW KANSAS FEELS.

The Kansas team seems to be in bad shape from the effects of the Saturday game. They are sore. Besides having their feelings hurt by the big score rolled up against them they are a very sore set of men physically. The Kansas City Journal says of them:

"The Kansas University football team arrived in this city yesterday afternoon from Lincoln, and a more bruised up crowd would be hard to find. Every one has marks of the grueling struggle with the Cornhuskers, and while none of the injuries are serious, they are more or less painful and rather disfiguring. Buzzi, who did such effective work at half and made the long run which terminated in the touch down, is the worst crippled player of the team, but he will be able to get into the game by next Saturday, when the Jayhawkers play Texas at Lawrence. He went into the game with a broken rib, which received some hard jolts." The same paper comments on the recent improvements on the Nebraska gridiron in these words:

"Nebraska has a score board arrangement for keeping the spectators posted on the progress of the game that would meet with the hearty commendation of the local football fans if adopted in this city. It is very hard for one in the grand stand to follow the dons and yards to gain, but with the system used by Nebraska all of this is made plain. The scoring board, which is about ten feet high and fourteen feet long, is so arranged that it gives the score, who has the ball, what down, yards to gain and touchdown and goal. Four men manipulate the board and another man stands on the side line, and by a system of lettered cards notifies the men at the board, who have it changed before the next play is off. By this method any spectator can tell the exact stage of the game, and without first consulting his neighbors. The Nebraska field is also arranged so that every one can see. No crowding out onto the side lines there. A high wire fence has been built round the gridiron, about fifteen feet back of the side lines. No one is allowed inside or the fence, unless he has business there, and few have. A new grandstand has also been erected, which all in all gives Nebraska one of the best, if not the best regulated and equipped field in the west."

MICHIGAN-PENNSYLVANIA DEBATE.

The Pennsylvania Debate Committee has proposed as a subject for the Fourth Annual Debate with the University of Michigan the following question: Resolved, "That the system of compulsory voting should be adopted in the United States." The University of Michigan will have the choice of sides. The debate will be held in Philadelphia on Friday, March 7, 1902. The team which will debate with Michigan will not be finally selected until next January.

DR. ANDREWS SPEAKS

Addresses the Students on Plagiarism--Involves Lying and Stealing--Calls it an Insult to University.

"Plagiarism has the wickedness of stealing one's coat or hat, it also has all the guilt of lying. A man gets something that does not belong to him and he lies to get it."

These are the sentiments of Chancellor Andrews, expressed in chapel yesterday. He spoke at some length of this vice as found in the student body. It consisted, he said, of appropriating matter written by someone else and passing it off as one's own. He had hoped that it would not invade the University and he further hoped to be able to check it at its inception.

Plagiarism is lying and the world hates lying. A literary man could lose his character no quicker than by stealing the work of another.

He pointed out another aspect of plagiarism in addition to its degrading effect on the character.

"Why would one, who wished to develop his body deliberately eschew food and eat chalk? Why do we come to the University if not to develop our minds? Do we not really want to learn to think and have real mental power? If not we might as well stay away."

The Chancellor then went on to show that this vice defeats the whole purpose for which students attend the University. The time one passes upon the work of another is not his own time.

"Do your own work," he said, "let us be honest enough with ourselves to pass in our own work however poor it is. Do your own part then the faculty will know your weak points and will be able to give help where it is needed." He urged students to be strictly honest in all their work.

The Chancellor explained the seriousness of the vice of plagiarism when committed in the University. A bank, he said, would view dishonesty in one of its employees with such more severity than it would the pilfering of a sneak thief. The University in the same way must look at plagiarism as a much more flagrant offense than if committed in the common walks of life.

"Such an offense," he said, "cannot be passed over. It insults the entire teaching force and every one of the students."

He declared that if it becomes necessary, the University must urge itself of those who practice it. It is the worst crime that could be committed against the faculty.

The Chancellor will speak this morning on the recent election in New York city.

AMERICAN COLLEGE LIFE DIFFERS FROM STUDENT LIFE IN FRANCE.

Mr. Andrae Salles, the Colonial Inspector of the French Government, who has been spending several years on an extended tour of inspection through the West Indies, Dahomes, Indo-China, and other French colonies, and who, during a brief visit to Philadelphia last week, made an inspection of the buildings of the University of Pennsylvania. He had never before visited an American Institute of learning, and was much impressed with the University and particularly with many phases of Penn's student life there. He exhibited a great interest in the dormitory system and the Houston Club, and also in the Wistar Institute of Anatomy and the new Museums. At the Houston Club he remarked that there were many aspects of student life presented to him which were not seen in France. Mr. Salles spent considerable time in the Museums, and while there he gave to Mr. Stewart Culin, for presentation to the University, a rare medal in bronze coined by the French government in 1781, in honor of the achievement of American independence.

PROFESSOR HOWARD VISITS THE UNIVERSITY.

Professor George E. Howard '76, visited at the University yesterday. Professor Howard was for a number of years, connected with the faculty of the University as head of the history department. He resigned his position here to accept a similar one at Leland Stanford Jr., University. Last winter he resigned his chair there and since then he has been doing some special work. He will remain in Lincoln for a day or two.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

State Secretary Bailey called at the Y. M. C. A. office Tuesday morning.

C. C. North went to Fremont Sunday and held a meeting at the Normal school there.

The Y. M. C. A. office has a new decoration in the shape of a picture of prominent Y. M. C. A. men. It shows the likenesses of all the Y. M. C. A. secretaries and physical directors in Nebraska.

The Association held a meeting at the "Farm" last Sunday, and organized a committee to take charge of the work there. Six men decided to form a bible class and the prospect is good that a room will be obtained for use of the Y. M. C. A. boys there.

THE WEATHER.

Forecast for Lincoln and vicinity: Wednesday fair and warmer.
