

The Daily Nebraskan

VOLUME 49

LINCOLN, NEB., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1901.

THREE CENTS

MUST STAND TRIAL

President Crawford of the Senior Law Class will be Tried Tomorrow. What the Accusations are.

President Crawford of the senior Law class will be taken before the class tomorrow on a charge of malfeasance in office. He will be placed on trial under regular impeachment proceedings and the class will determine the truth or falsity of the charge.

The specific charge against Mr. Crawford is that, contrary to all law, custom and the constitution of the class, he persistently refused to call a meeting of the class on the presentation of a petition signed by the required number of members. Another offense of which he is alleged by his accusers to be guilty, is that in spite of the fact that Roberts Rules of Order are a part of the legal code of the class, he has refused to follow the teachings laid down therein and to make decision in accordance therewith. These will be the two charges that will be brought against him.

It is not known whether Mr. Crawford will defend his case or not. He is reported to have refused to recognize the action looking toward impeachment. A later rumor has it that he will attend and defend his case. If he does not, a plea of not guilty will be entered and attorneys appointed to conduct his side of the proceedings.

The trial tomorrow will proceed under the direction of Presiding Judge F. B. Weaver. W. R. Hartl and M. J. Cronin have been appointed attorneys for the class and will conduct the prosecution. Twenty witnesses have been subpoenaed and a summons has been duly served on the defendant. According to the constitution two thirds of those present and voting are required to convict.

Mr. Cronin, attorney for the class said yesterday that he had a chain of evidence that could not fail to establish the guilt of the accused. He said that while it was a very painful responsibility for him to take on, yet he was under obligations to the class to do his duty and vindicate the constitution.

The trial will be held in the law lecture room at ten o'clock. If the crowd proves to large for the room, Judge Weaver will adjourn court to the old chapel. The crowd will be limited somewhat. Admission will be by ticket, and but 400 of these will be distributed.

Great interest in the outcome is manifested both in the class and out of it.

A MEMORIAL AT CANTON.

Chancellor Andrews has just received a communication from the McKinley National Memorial Association of Cleveland Ohio. This association is entirely distinct from the one whose communication was read a short time ago. Its purpose is to erect and maintain at Canton, Ohio, a suitable memorial to the late president. The following from the correspondence fully expounds the nature of the project.

"The life of William McKinley was rich in lessons that help to strong character and sturdy Americanism, qualities which you seek to develop in your students. A memorial to him would emphasize their value and inspire to their imitation. Because of this, I seek your co-operation our work. Every college and every school throughout the land should have its share in the building of a noble memorial to William McKinley and by virtue of your position, you can do much to promote the interest of those under your instruction and the people of your community in this movement. Your active personal interest is invited and will be fully appreciated."

"The memorial is to be, in the highest sense, the sincere expression of all the people of the country of their love for President McKinley and of their admiration for the qualities expressed so eminently in his life and deeds.

"It is the purpose to have the offerings of the people, voluntary with a full opportunity to all to contribute."

"The co-operation of the Governors and officers of the states and municipalities of the United States, and all religious, educational, civic, patriotic, fraternal, benevolent, and other organizations is invited."

MAY PLAY IOWA.

Through the efforts of Manager Cowgill, a rate of one and one third fares has been made from all points within fifty five miles of Lincoln for the Thanksgiving game. A attempt is being made to have the rate extended all over the state. There is a promise of a record breaking crowd for the Haskell game. Several towns within the rate limit are expecting to send delegations.

Manager Cowgill will leave the latter part of the week for Iowa where he goes to confer with Manager McCutcheon of the Iowa team regarding a game next year. It is thought that the old Thanksgiving game with that institution may be revived.

PROFESSOR HOWARD TO ADDRESS STUDENTS.

Chancellor Andrews has made the announcement that Professor Howard would address the students at the convocation hour either this morning or Monday. Professor Howard is a graduate of the University and for a number of years was the head of the history department here. He holds a very high place among the teachers of history of the country.

CLASS DEBATE ON THE CANTEEN.

The second debate in the Friday section of English 11, which will be held in the old chapel from 2 to 4 o'clock this afternoon, will be criticized by Mr. Fogg and Professor Ross. The question to be discussed is an interesting, up-to-date one, Resolved, That the canteen is preferable to the outside saloon. For the affirmative, Messrs Carter and Buck will argue; for the negative, Messrs. Hannan and Bell.

The Palladians are preparing a play which will be presented sometime in December.

NEW YORK ELECTION

Chancellor Andrews Discusses Some of its Aspects—Pays a Tribute to Seth Low as a Politician.

Chancellor Andrews spoke yesterday morning in chapel on the municipal election in New York. During the course of his remarks he expressed his views on political morality and other vital questions brought forward by the subject.

He said it was his good fortune to be in New York City on election day and to witness the battle at short range. The newspapers were almost as a unit in favor of the fusion forces headed by Seth Low. The leaders of Tammany, he said, had expected to win and when it was found that they did not there was great grief in the councils of that organization.

The Chancellor found some amusing things in the campaign. The most prominent was the cartoons that were run in the New York papers just before election. One of these presented David B. Hill dressed as a troubadour playing a guitar and singing: "O the Hardest Days are Endeavor Dickie Dear."

The Chancellor expressed the hope that the days of Tammany are ended. Tammany, he said, had been killed a number of times within his memory and he did not know how many times before he was born. The organization like a certain army had been annihilated the first time, then utterly annihilated, and on its revival had been utterly annihilated, dead and buried and the funeral had been held, yet it came up smiling again.

Dr. Andrews thought it would take a long time to get rid of a vicious organization like Tammany, but he believed that it is possible to root out its vicious elements. The people of both parties would unite in that. He viewed as significant of the feeling against Tammany the fact that nearly all the newspapers were agreed on the importance of the effort to put Tammany out of power. What has been done in New York can be done elsewhere. Right principles can be made to prevail.

In speaking of the personal side of the campaign Chancellor Andrews was of the opinion that it would have been impossible to have carried the campaign but for the power of the character of Seth Low. He said he had always pointed out as the three most powerful characters in American politics, President Roosevelt, Henry Cabot Lodge and Seth Low. All three entered politics about the same time, were well educated and went into politics in spite of its noxiousness, not from necessity but for what good they could do. He thought the character of Seth Low the most beautiful of all. He was beaten for mayor the last time he ran and he went into this campaign with the people expecting him to be beaten again, but he had the courage to make the attempt.

"I Love that sort of a man" exclaimed the Chancellor. The men who usually go into politics have not that courage. Mr. Low campaigned as he had never campaigned before. He did not call names nor throw mud. He said that he believed in the integrity of Shepard, but he did not believe that anyone could advance the interests of the city under the rule of Tammany. Shepard was the peer of Low, but the people did not know and trust him as they did the latter. Low's character and public spirit did more than anything else to win the election.

In conclusion Chancellor Andrews said that the best men of the country ought to go into politics. It ought to be so that the ablest men could offer themselves for office. He expressed the hope that in a few years it would be so.

SOPHOMORES TO PLAY THE MEDICS.

The Sophomore team will play the Lincoln Medics at Havelock Saturday. An interesting game is anticipated. The Sophomores have one of the strongest class teams in the University and have come out victorious in all the games played this year.

Several days ago the Sophomores played the Lincoln high school to a standstill, the game ending with scores for neither side. The latter scholastic aggregation defeated Doane by 12 to 0. Doane scored 39 points against the Medics and succeeded in shutting them out. This is the only means of determining the relative merits of the teams, but at any rate it will be a hard battle. The back field for the Sophomores is especially strong and with Reynolds at tackle they feel confident of proving the equal of their opponents.

ADDITIONS TO THE LIBRARY.

The following important additions to the Library have been made since September 1, 1901.

Literature.

Modern eloquence, 10 volumes.
Burns, Complete Works, 6 volumes.
Law.
Savigny, system des heutigen Romischen Rechts, 10 volumes.
Lawyers Reports, Annotated, 67 volumes.

History.

Pfaff, Antiquities of Herculaneum, 6 volumes.
Roux, Herculaneum et Pompeii, 8 volumes.
Ewald, History of Israel, 8 volumes.
King, Southern States.
De Bow, Industrial resources of the Southern and Western States, 4 volumes.

Harriman, Alaska expedition 1899, 2 volumes.
Yale Bi-centennial publications, 16 volumes.
Charlevoix, History of New France, 6 volumes.

Science.

Zoologischer Jahresbericht, 1880-86.
Anatomischer Anzeiger, 1886-92.
Newton, Opera. Horsley edition, 1779-85; 5 volumes.
Annales des sciences naturelles, Zoologie, 1844-85; 80 volumes.

The Chancellor of the University of Idaho recently received a communication from an English barrister, seeking to have the degree of LL. D. conferred upon one of his clients, an aspirant for a seat in Parliament. The barrister stated that his client was willing to pay liberally for the honor. The offer was refused with contempt by the University authorities.