COLLEGE NOTES.

Michigan has a University Prohibition club.

Leland Stanford is contemplating having a wrestling contest.

During the football season Minnesota has been receiving the reports of football games played away from the University, in the chapel. An immense canvass was used and as direct and continual reports came in the game was traced on the charted field. Music and other attractions filled in the waits.

It is said that Minnesota has the best college band in the country.

Minnesota is bemoaning the fact that she has no college songs.

The University of California is at present interested in its annual regatta.

California has a flourishing archery club.

Virginia claims the southern football championship.

A dictionary of college slang is in process of compilation and construction by two eastern professors.

Leland Stanford is now beginning baseball practice.

Harvard, Yale and Columbia will hold intercollegiate gymnasium exhibits.

The University of California, Juniors give a class farce and Prom on the same day.

Yale has held the basket ball championship ever since the formation of the intercollegiate basket ball association.

Michigan has completed her football season without being scored on. She rolled up 501 points against opponents.

The net profit of the college daily of most of the large northern Universities is about $1,000 a year—as the Yale News, The Daily Princeton-ian, The Harvard Crimson, and the Pennsylvania. The editor-in-chief and his associates usually divide one-half, the other half going to the business managers. The reporters must be content with what glory there is in it, and a chance for promotion on the next board. — Ex.

There are 250 students at Michigan who make their way through school.

Cornell is endeavoring to regulate or abolish the evil of "cribbing" in examination, and to place the students on their honor.

The freshmen of Cornell recently won a debate from the sophomores. Strange things often happen.

The Daily Cardinal of Wisconsin on the day of the big Wisconsin-Minnesota game came out in bright colors as a special number.

Rudyard Kipling recently received a two-dollar bill and a request for "a sentiment" from a California girl. He sent a card on which he had written the words: "Hurrah for California!" — Ex.

In the University of Pennsylvania there are fifty three active students' clubs, thirty-three fraternities, and numerous general university athletic and sporting associations. — Ex.

Michigan has held a barbecue at which college spirit was allowed full play and the gridiron heroes had their full share of praise.

To the Editor of the Daily Nebraskan: Please allow me to correct a statement which occurred in yesterday's "Nebraskan" to the effect that Mr. Alfred E. Carter was still "serving with his regiment" in Havana, Cuba. Mr. Carter's term of military service ended with the fulfillment of the requirements of the military department of the University. He now holds a responsible position as a civilian assistant engineer in the department of sewers of Havana, and is connected with the war department in so far as he reports to the army engineer placed in charge of the work in Cuba by the Secretary of War.

Sincerely,
DAN GUTLEBEN.

The Rev. Francis W. Eason, Rector of the Holy Trinity Episcopal church has therefore been invited to speak tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Lincoln Academy upon "Football—its place and its value." Mr. Eason is an old football player and an enthusiastic lover of the game. All are invited.

L. D. Stillson of York, visited the University this week. He is an institute lecturer and was looking up subjects for his lectures.
