Rodney Bliss, pitcher on the baseball team of 1900 is one of the promising candidates for pitcher on the Chicago University team for the coming season.

Coach Booth may well feel proud of his past work. A man who has done his work so satisfactorily and who has the sympathy of the entire student body and that of the members of the faculty, as Mr. Booth has, is not to be found every day.

How can the Daily afford to make such a low rate for subscriptions? That is easy. A large circulation makes advertising much more profitable and therefore much more plentiful. Again students who get into the habit of taking the Daily are not likely to get out of the habit. They find it so satisfactory to have a copy of their own each day that they are willing to pay the subscription price.

Of course you'll have to keep your room warm this winter

The Palladian society will meet Saturday evening for the election of officers.

The girls in second year gymnasium are showing more interest in basketball this year than ever before.

The magazine of the University of Oregon is bewailing the lack of college spirit among the students there.

The band was given a very pretty descriptive overture at the last rehearsal. The selections portrays an ambuscade.

Miss Florence McGahey, '01, has been chosen to take Miss Jackson's place as mathematics instructor in the Plattsmouth high school. Miss Jackson goes to Hastings to fill a similar position.

The new grand stand has been very appropriately decorated by a coat of scarlet and cream paint. There is probably not a better appointed athletic field west of the Mississippi and the student body should feel proud of the fact.

T. A. Butcher is back in school again. He has been teaching in Tachaea, Mexico, about fifty miles from Mexico City. He reports that the country is a great field for machinists and engineers. The wages in other employments are somewhat low because of the competition of the natives whose standard of living is very low.

DEBATE IN ENGLISH 13

The question to be debated this afternoon in the advanced class in oral discussion is: Resolved, That the concentration of power in the hands of the mayor is the true path of reform in municipal government.

The affirmative will be supported by C. E. Wells and H. G. Strayer; the negative by William Yoder and O. G. Horne.

Professor E. A. Ross will assist in criticizing the debate.

Last spring Professor Richards bought the valve gear of an old Class A locomotive from the B. & M. railway. This apparatus has since been mounted and connected with a sectioned valve and model valve-seat, cylinder, piston, and connecting rod. As this is a complete, life size model with reverse lever and all complete, it adds materially to the equipment of the Mechanical Engineering Laboratory. The experimenters can have more confidence in results obtained from a model of this kind since it is not an apparatus made by a theorizer, but a machine that has helped move a great many train-loads of freight.

Mr. Yont of Brock, who has patronized the University to the extent of sending several of his gigantic sons here, sent Professor Chatburn a large trunk of a catalpa tree and also one of an osage orange. They will be dressed and cut down into standard sizes for test pieces and crushed in the testing machine. As the strength of these woods, and especially since they were grown on Nebraska soil, is not generally given in the handbooks, this will be an interesting experiment.
