

COMMUNICATION.

The following suggestion has been handed to the Daily with the request that it be published:

One thing that our institution is badly in need of is a new lot of lockers in the boy's dressing rooms. As it is now there are not enough to suffice for all and the boys' clothes have to be left exposed to the hands of anyone while they are out. As a result of this sort of thing, Lawrence Hehl, of the College of Law was robbed of his gold watch and chain and class pin yesterday afternoon while he was taking a bath. Such as this could be avoided by providing more lockers.

There is an article on the "Future of College Girl and the Teaching opportunity" in a recent number of the Western College magazine which is interesting to read if it is not convincing. Probably the Co-eds will not like the article for it begins by saying "there are altogether too many of them in the first place."

The author advises more than half of the girls who think of going to college to stay at home and make life pleasant for the father and mother and urges that the girl be a social help in her home environment and in the end be the subject of some lovely book like Janette Merideth or Roma.

Basket ball is next on the list of student activity to claim attention. After her most successful season on the gridiron, Nebraska can well afford to devote some of her energy toward the development of this form of athletics. Though played in doors and under circumstances that render the game somewhat less interesting to the general public than football, the game has many features that should make it popular. It is for the most part a student game. So far it has been kept remarkably free from the contaminating influence of professionalism. It demands great physical development, endurance and skill. It has the advantage of being both a woman's and a man's game. Nebraska should give loyal support to her basket ball team this year.

Miss Helen Streeter, '04, who went to her home at Kearney to spend Thanksgiving vacation, will not return until after Christmas holidays.

Miss Helen Koop of Falls City, is visiting her sister Bessie Koop, '02, this week.
