THREE CENTS

SHOULD EXTEND TRADE.

Professor Taylor Advises the Extension of Trade with Foreign Nations—Discusses Reciprocity.

Professor Taylor resumed his talk yesterday at convocation on reciprocity as treated in the president's message.

He quoted the argument that a country must buy as much as it sells; if it buys from one country more than it sells to that country, it must sell so much the more to other countries, in order that there may be a final balancing of trade. This would be all right, he said, if the conditions which the argument presupposes were true. The argument takes the ground that trade conditions have settled to a permanent state. It supposes that the present state of affairs is advantageous and that any disturbance in the course of trade is disadvantageous. It further supposes, said Professor Taylor, that differences of trade are differences of production and that production takes place where it is easiest. No consideration is taken of the fact that the place of production and consequently the course of trade may be moved.

In answer to these suppositions Professor Taylor maintained that trade is not always established by reason of apparent advantages, but sometimes by racial relations, as is shown by the fact that many Englishmen in Argentine trade with England when the United States is in a better position to furnish the articles sought. He declared that the same efforts should be made to found a foreign trade as to found an internal trade. He showed that sacrifices are made to further internal commerce and that it is as incumbent upon the government to make sacrifices in order to find foreign markets as it is upon the foreigner to seek our markets.

Professor Taylor then quoted the president's message to the effect that it should be the purpose of the government to extend its markets. He defined the reciprocity policy as the policy of trying to extend markets by means of offering inducements in tariff rates to foreign countries. He maintained that there is not much free trade about the Dingley law because it allows reciprocity in connection with certain articles only to the extent of 20 per cent which makes the tariff about what it was under the McKinley law.

Professor Taylor claims that the great question with regard to reciprocity is whether the government shall adjust trade relations or whether such adjustment shall be left to individuals in the natural course of trade.

HOLIDAY RATES.

It has been announced that the holiday rates for students will not be put in effect until Friday evening and Saturday. Students leaving before that time will not get the benefit of any reduction.

Certificates to enable students to take advantage of the reduced rates will be issued from the executive office Friday and Saturday.

When in doubt buy Tumble Weeds.

COACH BOOTH WILL REMAIN.

A contract has been made between the athletic board and Coach W. C. Booth by the terms of which the latter agrees to remain with Nebraska for the next football season. This puts to rest the disquieting rumors to the effect that Coach Booth has been contemplating signing a contract with Wisconsin.

OFFICERS TO GIVE A HOP.

The officers of the cadet battalion will give a hop in the near future. This was decided on at a meeting of the officers yesterday afternoon after drill. An organization with J. C. Lawler as President and T. H. Gould a Secretary-treasurer was effected. A committee to take charge of the hop was chosen as follows: J. R. Farney, Chairman; W. P. Wallace, Master of Ceremonies; J. C. Lawler. The date of the hop will be announced in a few days.

PHILOSOPHICAL CLUB MEETING.

Dr. H. B. Lowry of Lincoln will lecture on "The Human Brain" before the University Philosophical Club on Wednesday evening, December 18 at 8 o'clock. Just previous to the lecture a business meeting of the mem-

THE ART EXHIBIT.

Masterpieces to be Brought From Buffalo—The Best Exhibition in the West—The Opening Reception.

The Nebraska art association will hold its annual art exhibit in the art rooms in the library hall beginning December 6 and lasting until January 16.

The association is most fortunate this year in obtaining a collection of fine works direct from the Pan-American exhibition, which includes some of the finest pieces now open to public inspection.

The first night will be one worthy of remark as the elite of Lincoln will gather at an informal reception in the art rooms and thus open the exhibition. The reception will be open to all holding tickets and receiving will be performed by prominent ladies of the city.

The greater part of the display this year will be included in those pictures brought from outside the state. It is feared Nebraska and the city will not be so well represented and therefore it is urged through these columns that the Lincoln and state artists desiring to enter work will make it known by their application fact that it is the best west of Chicago including Omaha, Denver and St. Louis.

ENGINEERING NOTES.

W. M. Mundorf, '02, familiarly known as "William Waldorf" returned to Lincoln last Saturday from Wyoming. He expects to complete his work next semester.

Edward A. Bessey, '98, was shaking hands with his friends in Mechanic Arts hall yesterday. After spending two weeks vacation at home he will return to Pittsfield, Mass., to continue his work in the instrument testing department of the Stanley Electric Co.

Gustavus Babson, '04, field draftsman in a B. & M. surveying party located about 100 miles northwest of Billings, Mont., writes that he is enjoying his work at the rate of about 14 hours a day. With about 12 congenial companions and a good cook, Babson admits camping in the wilderness is not so lonesome as might be expected, even at this time of the year. Music is always plentiful after supper and varies from the mouth-organ two-step to the weird yells of hungry klotes.

A WARNING TO FRESHMEN.

The decorous quiet of the University Library was rudely disturbed last night about 7 o'clock by the report that the sophomores had put up a scurrilous epitaph in the library hall as a challenge to the class of 1905. The poster staled on the bulletin board long enough for every one in the library to see it, before a bold freshman ventured to tear it down. If the freshmen accept the challenge as it is thought they will, this will probably precipitate a class scrap among the lower classmen.

The poster was printed in bold letters and read as follows:

INSIPID IMBECILES!

Nauseous Numbskulls!

Imps of 1905!

Drink death and seek the coffin factory!

The class of 1904 having reached the pinnacle of mastery and attained it, is prepared to wreak a stupefying obliteration on all who dare to buffet the surging crest of the incarceration avalanche of the infinite of its intelligence!

Go way back and sit down!

Avaunt! to other crimes ye skunks!

Least here we seal your fate!

Mendota is no pest bed waste:

Oh! water-swallow-permeate!

For the land is small and the lake is large.

And 1905 is weak,

A toss and a jump and another chump

Will have the shore to seek!

PONDER.

Who knows but that another day will see your class a horde of Blood Stained!! Hell Chained!! Souls!

Misses Laura Buchanan and Bessie Brown entertained the Eleventh Hour Club at a Kensington last Saturday afternoon. Next Saturday afternoon they will meet with Misses Lila Spurlock, Hazel Hartsough and Grace Evans meeting for the final before the holidays.

The Daily For 75 Cents.

The Daily has made the unprecedented offer of 75 cents for the remainder of the school year. This is made with the intention of running the subscription list up to 1,000. At this price no student can afford to be without the paper. If you have been borrowing your neighbor's paper, cut out the coupon found in another column and return it with the proper amount of money. You will then receive a copy of your own every day for the rest of the school year.

THIS OFFER will positively be withdrawn December 25th.

Solicitors can learn of a money making proposition by calling at the Daily office, 134 N. 11th street.

Members of the club will be held at 7:30 pm. The members are urged to attend the business meeting and all interested will be welcome to the lecture, whether members or not. The meeting will be held in Room 109, Library Building.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

The University has received word that the Civil Service commission will hold an examination on January 21 and 22 at Omaha, Grand Island and Beatrice, for the positions of irrigation assistant and irrigation engineer at a salary of $1,500 per annum each. Persons desiring to compete should apply for application form 364 and 375 to the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

JUNIORS CHALLENGE SENIORS

The Junior class hereby extends a challenge to the Senior class to play a game of basket ball, said game to be played soon after the holidays.

J. M. FERGUSON,

Captain Junior Basket Ball team.

The first year Domestic Science class took up the study of doughs yesterday. They began with biscuits.

Immediately, because of the usual rush which comes during the last few days before opening. The exhibitors will by so doing obtain much better accommodations than otherwise.

The number of pictures from Buffalo will be about eighty, among them, worthy of remark being Blasfield's "Angel with Flaming Sword," one of the present day masterpieces and the Shaw group. The latter have taken the Shaw prize in New York and are not surpassed in modern art.

These pictures will all be first class as they have been judged by the best and leading critics of the day. They are exhibition pictures in themselves which makes them the more useful for art halls. The pictures also are productions of more prominent painters than those formerly shown.

Season tickets to the members of the association are one dollar, but to students and teachers a rate of 50 cents is made. This places within reach of every student the possibility of visiting the art rooms during the days of the exhibit at any time, and of studying at his pleasure these beautiful works of the masters. The exhibition in itself is worthy in the
