Such a plan is worth attention in Nebraska. Who knows but what, if proper persuasion were used, a star football man might be made of that fine seven-footer who has been ducking at the University doors all this year?

From a look at him I feel sure that he could do football service but I feel surer still that a good hard season's drill in the squad would be one of the best things that could happen to him. Classroom work has its own gifts of information, of character and of culture.

How much of real power may be got from any college work depends upon electing, not the "snaps" but the work which promises the hardest effort and then doing it with distinction. Such work is found in athletics, in great degree, if followed up in the right way and many a freshman owes to military drill and athletics unconscious habits of discipline which have served him all through college and which will continue to serve him through life.

Many an old college man will point to athletics as the source of the best that came to him from college life.

Tumble Weeds.

We have looked over with some care and growing pleasure a little volume of verse, by Will Reed Dunroy, issued by the University Publishing Co., entitled "Tumble Weeds." We find Mr. Dunroy an interesting person. He undertakes large things, and approaches them in a large way. He aims evidently for nothing short of the highest work. It will be curious to see what a young man with this ambition can achieve. Mr. Dunroy seems to be distinctly a western man—one of those who are quite content with their own environment as a sphere for action and growth. His themes are things that exist, and that he can see around himself; it is men who can take this view, it seems to us, who are going to count on the future of our western civilization. One little poem on "Dawn" attracted us particularly, and another on Sergeant Floyd. We wondered a little at Mr. Dunroy's having thought it necessary to put a pretty little thing about Nebraska into apostrophe's dialect. A peculiarity that struck us was a strain of devoutness that runs through some of the poems, together, with some tokens of displeasure with the church organizations.
