Tumble Weeds.

We have looked over with some care and growing pleasure a little volume of verse, by Will Reed Dunroy, issued by the University Publishing Co., entitled "Tumble Weeds." We find Mr. Dunroy an interesting person. He undertakes large things, and approaches them in a large way. He aims evidently for nothing short of the highest work. It will be curious to see what a young man with this ambition can achieve. Mr. Dunroy seems to be distinctly a western man—one of those who are quite content with their own environment as a sphere for action and growth. His themes are things that exist, and that he can see around himself; it is men who can take this view, it seems to us, who are going to count on the future of our western civilization. One little poem on "Dawn" attracted us particularly, and another on Sergeant Floyd. We wondered a little at Mr. Dunroy's having thought it necessary to put a pretty little thing about Nebraska into apostrophe's dialect. A peculiarity that struck us was a strain of devoutness that runs through some of the poems, together, with some tokens of displeasure with the church organizations.
