Mr. Cornell, the university photographer has taken some pictures of the domestic science department, to be used in farmer's institutes.

A large number of students have registered for the new courses in American history, introduced for the first time this semester.

The number of students, taking American history, has been largely increased this semester. The present condition of the library makes it difficult for them to obtain books.

The historical library is undergoing some repairs, and changes. The new cases containing the Indian display have taken up so much room that it is necessary to rearrange things.

The Kapp Alpha Theta group picture just completed by Mr. Townsend of the Elite Studio, is attracting marked attention. The display windows contain several of this year's fraternities. It is interesting to observe the high standard of portraiture produced by this popular studio.

AT THE OLIVER.

"Laughter, sentiment and humanity" is the summing up of "The Cowboy and the Lady," by no less a critic than Clement Scott who, as everyone knows is more of a "roaster" than anything else. It is this mingling of pathos, humor and heart interest that has made "The Cowboy and the Lady" such a great success both artistically and financially. The play will be seen at the Oliver tonight with S. Miller Kent in the leading role, surrounded by a clever company. Seats now on sale.

Of course you'll have to keep your room warm this winter
