Description of Lord Kitchener.

An English writer lately returned from South Africa has published the following description of Lord Kitchener: "Tall and well-proportioned above, he falls away from his waist downward. It is this lower weediness which evidently troubles the man who fashions his clothes. A round, red and somewhat puffy face. Square head, with staff cap set carelessly upon it. Heavy mustaches covering a somewhat mobile mouth, at the moment inclined to smile. Eyes just anyhow; heavy but not overpowering eyebrows. In fact, a very ordinary face of a man just past his prime. Hardly a figure that you would have remarked if it had not been for the gilt upon his hat—in fact, it was all a disappointing discovery."

ON

"Tumble Weeds."

"Tumble Weeds" is a collection of original poems by Will Reed Dunroy, the author of "Corn Tassels." While some of these poems have special reference to western life, most of them are upon themes as broad as humanity, and they give evidence of an unusual degree of poetic talent in the author. — W. J. BRYAN, in the Commoner.
