THREE CENTS

VARSIITY VS. OMAHA

Two Interesting Games Played With Professionals.—University Boys are Beaten, but Not Discouraged.

Captain Bell's men took a brace yesterday and held the Omaha men down to a score of 10 to 4. In spite of the drizzling rain that fell throughout the game, the playing of the varsity boys was decidedly better than the day before and the errors less numerous.

Gaines and Raymond distinguished themselves by making home runs. De Putron made the best runs, getting to third three times, and to second the fourth. Gaines and Leatherby did the pitching, both doing effective work. Eight men were struck out, seven allowed hits and five given their base on balls.

A fair-sized crowd was present in spite of the inclemency of the weather.

Batteries—Leatherby, Gaines and Doane; Hayes and Alloway.

Errors—Omaha 7, Varsity 7.

Home runs—Raymond, Gaines.

Score—Omaha 10, Varsity 4.

Several bad errors on the part of the varsity team caused its defeat Monday at the hands of the Omaha leaguers. The first game of the season was a disappointment to many, who expected the varsity to hold their opponents down to a smaller score.

De Putron's work in the field is deserving of special mention, as is also Rhodes' at shortstop. Townsend pitched good ball the first five innings, holding the visitors down to one safe hit. His place was taken by Thomson in the sixth inning. The line-up:

SENIOR PROM.

The senior prom. committee this year proposes to break away from the method—which has become customary of late—of conducting university social affairs primarily for the net proceeds. The chief aim of the committee is to give an enjoyable party, and to that end no expense is spared to provide for the guests everything that goes to make a successful promenade. The proceeds are secondary consideration and it is not expected to make any fortune at the expense of the guests. No one will be able to feel that he has not had his money's worth. A good crowd and a good time are expected.

TENNIS ASSOCIATION.

The first regular meeting of the tennis association for this season was held in old chapel Monday afternoon. Considering the size of the association membership, a fairly good representation was present.

A report was made by Manager Farnsworth of last year as to the condition of the association, its needs and prospects. A general discussion of the opening season was indulged in. Plans were mapped out for the guidance of the association this year. Owing to the small, limited membership of the association, it has been more or less difficult to meet expenses, especially in the case of tournaments with other institutions.

The following officers were elected for this year:

President, Robt. T. Hill.

Vice president, W. G. Hiltner.

Secretary-treasurer, E. P. Tyner.

Manager, Guy M. Peters.

THE CHANCELLOR

Speaks About the Boer War, and the Outcome.—Mr. and Mrs. Bob. Burdette Address the Students.

Chancellor Andrews spoke at the university yesterday upon the probable outcome of the Boer war. The first result to be noticed, he said, was the unfavorable condition in the internal politics of England. There is a great political chasm in English life. As a rule, the differences of opinion in that country are concerning things about which honest men might have different views, and are so recognized by the disagreeing factions themselves. But now many liberals, and among them some of the most powerful thinkers of the country, believe that the government is acting criminally against all the cherished principles of British realization of his hopes. The Dutch element will gradually predominate in the colonies and the anti-British sentiment will increase. The political power will be Dutch in sentiment and the memory of the war will go far toward making it more so. Some future struggle for independence may result in a United States of South Africa.

There will arise, furthermore, a shaken sense of loyalty in British colonies outside of South Africa. The colonial troops came forward nobly beside the English-born soldiers, but the war has shaken their faith. It has always been the boast of the Englishman that the free colonies need not belong to the power of Great Britain if they did not wish, that they were only bound by ties of love. But the spirit of the Boer war has been coercion of a free people alleged to be in a remote way a British colony. A new and less happy aspect of the relation between themselves and England has been presented to other colonies.

MR. AND MRS. BURDETTE AT CONVOCATION.

The presence of Mr. and Mrs. Burdette at convocation last Monday morning was the cause for an unusually large attendance. Frequent bursts of laughter and rounds of applause showed that the speakers had met an appreciative audience. Mrs. Burdette expressed herself as highly pleased over the presence of so many co-eds in the university, and said that she sincerely hoped that the University of Nebraska would never see fit to draw the line on co-education.

Inasmuch as the ultimate place of woman is wifehood, said Mrs. Burdette, there is no reason why young men and women should not spend their college days together; yet, at the same time, the young women should bear in mind that in later life they will hold a place far different from the present one, one distinctly their own. After all, the work at college is merely character building and unless higher ideals are formed all is lost.

Mrs. Burdette further reminded the young women that home is the center of woman's life. Yet, since it is not man's limit, neither should it be woman's. Successful home keeping is the highest ideal for both man and woman. The preservation of the home means good citizenship and government.

Mr. Burdette's renown as a speaker was enough to bring forth a hearty applause at his very first words. Self-confidence and belief were the words which he took for his subject. Nothing is possible, he said, to him who does not believe, but to him who does believe all things will come in their turn. As an instance of self-confidence Mr. Burdette mentioned Anson, the great baseball team captain, who never knew defeat. Confidence, faith and courage, said the speaker, are the three great essentials of life and he who possesses these will always find that he will always succeed.

Mr. Burdette's talk was interspersed with the humorous remarks which have made the speaker famous:

approval of the athletic board, the election of Mr. Peters by the association will have to be approved before he can assume his full duties.

A committee was appointed by the president to reconstruct the old constitution and formulate some amendments. The meeting was adjourned to meet Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

IOWA—PERHAPS.

Football Manager Engle met Manager McCutcheon of Iowa in Omaha recently and negotiations were opened up for a game for next year between the two institutions.

Manager McCutcheon stated that since Iowa would not play Grinnell on November 15, there might be a possibility of arranging a game with Nebraska. The latter, on the other hand, is scheduled to play Knox college on that date. The manager of the Iowa team suggested that it might be arranged with Knox college to defer the game, give it up entirely or let Iowa play her at an open date.

Insofar as the Grinnell game was to be played at Iowa City, the game of the two larger institutions would, in case of proper understanding, be played at that place. These negotiations are entirely unofficial and propositions will be submitted to both athletic boards for consideration.

A loss of prestige on the part of Great Britain will follow. She has always been feared, if not loved, but now she will be despised; she has not performed many brilliant feats in the present war. The rank and file of British soldiers have done nobly, as they always have done; they have never fought better than in South Africa, going to their death there with characteristic intrepidity. But England is unfortunate in her generals. She has lost vantage ground in important parts of the world. Many European nations have actually helped the Boers in a way that would be difficult to indict either after or during the war as a breach of neutrality. Russia has improved the opportunity to advance her outposts. Russia has been interested in the southern as well as the extreme eastern part of Asia, advancing toward the head waters of the Persian gulf. And other countries, among them Germany, are endeavoring to reach that same interesting body of water. Great Britain is likely to lose considerable influence and power in Asia.

There is little doubt that Great Britain will ultimately conquer in the immediate contest. It isn't the nature of Great Britain to begin a work and not finish it. But that will not be the final end of the difficulty. The Boer will not be subjugated, nor fall in the
