Contestants for the Bryan prize should remember that the theses are due on May 1st.

Mr. Cook's class in constitutional law is working on laws impairing the obligation of a contract.

The Nebraska State Press association will be entertained at the experiment station Tuesday, May 6.

Kim Barnes has been spending a few days with his parents at Norfolk while recovering from a bad cold.

A packed opera house means $500 to the College Settlement. YOU are now in position to help a good cause.

The senior law students have been experiencing considerable trouble in securing a desirable speaker for commencement. As is well known, it is impossible to secure any senator or congressman on account of the probability of congress being in session. As yet the law students have secured no one, but it is probable that one will be selected this week.

Chas. Nesbit, a former university student, now engaged in the mercantile business at Tekamah, Neb., stopped off a few hours at the university yesterday while en route to the Pacific coast.

A copy of the University of Colorado Studies has been received at the executive office. It contains the results of research done by the faculties of that institution and is a very creditable publication.

Bruce Yates, '92, who has been in the city visiting with his parents, has returned to Lead, S. D., where he is engaged as superintendent in underground work for the Homestake Mining company.

The class in journalism made a visit to the experiment station last Saturday. The members report a very good time as well as an instructive one. The professors at the farm were not backward in showing the members of the class around and explaining the minutest details.

C. G. Rochon, ex-'03, has been heard from recently at Edmonton Alberta, Canada, where he has taken a very rich claim of land. Mr. Rochon writes a very glowing account of his new home and especially of his lake, which borders on a beautiful lake and has many other advantages.

The senior class has placed an order with Miss Hayden of the art department for an oil painting of Miss Ellen Smith, the university registrar. The seniors deemed this a fitting tribute to the services of Miss Smith, who will leave this institution at the same time as the senior class. The painting will be similar to that one of Dr. Edgren placed in the library by the class of 1901.

Sigurd J. P. Anker, '00, has made another attempt as an author. He is now having published by the Lutheran Publishing House, Blair, Neb., a grammar for use in the Scandinavian parochial schools. This is the first textbook designed to meet the wants of Scandinavian students in America. As it is modeled after American textbooks, and eminently practical, it will surely succeed as a help to those who wish to study their mother tongue.
