KANSAS DRUBBED

Jayhawkers Arrive and are Given an Explanation of Ball-Playing.—
Nebraska Scores at Will.

The Nebraska bell-ringers practiced a little rag-time on the mighty men from Kansas yesterday and showed them how to play ball in a game that resulted in a score of 25 to 8 in favor of the university players.

The game was an easy one from start to finish and the way they landed on the Kansas big man who officiated in the box was a caution. Like the famous Siamese twins, the pitcher was unable to do anything except by the help of his brother, who presided behind him, and as Umpire Maloney was not disposed to show any favoritism, Allphin was charitable enough to grant the Nebraska men some twenty odd hits. The scores the Kansas men did make were the result of occasional good hits and that they scored at all was not Nebraska's fault.

The boys all did good work at the bat, hitting everything that came along, knocking frequent two and three-baggers and occasionally putting in a home run for a novelty.

Hood started the hitting by knocking out a liner that was fumbled, and then the fireworks began. Bell and Rhodes followed with safe hits; Bender went to first on an error, Gaines made another hit and Townsend raised a little excitement by knocking out a home run. De Putron followed with a hit, and then the boys decided that they had done enough work for a while and De Putron, Raymond and Letherby went out, however, not before the other six had crossed the home plate. The work in the other innings was similar, only in the fifth inning did the Kansas men hold them down to a zero. In the same inning the Jayhawkers took a brace and made four successive hits that allowed three men to score.

The work of some of the Kansas men was poor to say the least, and one would-be player has five errors to his credit. Letherby threw the ball for Nebraska and put up his usual swift and steady game. The other men played with their customary steadiness and to say that good ball was played merely describes the work of each individual man. Rhodes made a sensational slide that tore a big hole in his nice new trousers, but the Jayhawkers didn't even have a chance to dirty their pretty red suits.

There is every reason to believe that the game tomorrow will not be a repetition of today's exhibition and Kansas men will probably put up a better class of ball.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Guy Peters, manager of the tennis association, announces that there will be a tournament of the members of the association next week for the choosing of the players to represent the university in the Kansas-Nebraska meet which will occur some time in the latter part of the semester.

It is urged that all those interested in the game and not already members of the association will affiliate themselves as soon as possible. No one, also, not a member of the association is allowed to compete for places on the team.

The association is in a flourishing condition and the courts are in constant use every day. Some excellent material is being developed. Negotiations have been opened up with Minnesota, Missouri and Colorado for games, but nothing can be announced in regard to those possibilities.

The prospects for a large crowd to the play tonight are excellent. A few thirty-five cent seats, and also some fifty cent seats, are left and may be secured any time today. Fill the gallery and there will be a royal good university time.

Samuel Carney resumed his school work last Tuesday. He has been absent since spring vacation, owing to illness.

Jesper Hunt, '96, now principal of the Wakefield schools, has been elected principal of the Randolph schools for next year.

The lecture in American history 18 yesterday was given by Mr. Persinger, owing to Professor Caldwell's absence from the city.

Mr. Allen Sedgwick leaves next Wednesday for Minnesota. He will be an assistant assayer in one of the mines in the northern part of that state.

SENIORS PLAY OFF

Class of 1902 Celebrate the Annual "Sneak Day."—Large Party Leaves the City on a May Picnic.

Amid the flourish of banners and the din of trumpets and horns the seniors secretly departed yesterday for Woodlawn to celebrate the famous "sneak day." For a number of years it has been customary for the graduating class to appropriate some day for a general "sneak." Notwithstanding the fact that it is always expected to keep the day secret, heretofore it has generally been known days before. This year, however, the seniors planned its work so carefully and had every detail so well arranged that it was scarcely known by a single person that they were to depart yesterday. Not until the absence of the seniors from the campus and the music of the abbreviated band at the station told them, were the unsuspecting juniors aware of what had actually happened.

At about nine o'clock the seniors assembled at the Burlington station, where they had chartered a train to take them to the beautiful picnic grounds at Woodlawn. By chartering the train they were able to arrive at their destination much earlier and enjoy more of the morning and to return at their pleasure. A small sized band, including the principal musical instruments, was made up from the class. The band furnished music during the day besides serenading the people along the road.

Arriving at Woodlawn, a beautiful picnic ground was soon found, where they at once settled down to enjoy life as only seniors could do. It was expected that the train following the special would bring a crowd of juniors. In this, however, the seniors were disappointed, for they fully intended to show the juniors (if they came) how well they could be treated. The absence of any interference by the juniors did not cause them to enjoy themselves any the less. All kinds of frolics were indulged in during the morning hour. Shortly after noon the happy seniors sat down to an elegant dinner, which had been prepared by the young ladies of the class with a view to making it one that has never before been equalled. All the delicacies which the greatest epicure could wish for had been brought by the thoughtful girls.

Yesterday being not only "sneak day," but also May day, the seniors decided to have a May queen—and the class was as one in its decision as to who should be the proud wearer of the crown. Immediately after the dinner had been served, President Harbor crowned Miss Hannah Pillsbury queen of the day for the excellent service she had rendered to the class by her untiring efforts in securing refreshments.

After this ceremony had been performed, Mr. Harbor called upon various members of the class to respond with short speeches. These proved to be very amusing, being given in a lighter vein and with considerable skill by the different speakers. The young ladies were not at all backward in responding with short talks.

As soon as the class had recovered sufficiently from the dinner, the members at once began to have a good time. The principal attractions were the ball games—in which not only the young men took part, but also the ladies. One interesting game was played between two teams headed by Captain Dirks and Captain Clinton. After an exciting contest, Herr Dirks and his burghers defeated the Clinton men by a score of 9 to 8. The center of attraction in this line, however, was a game between a team composed of girls and a team of the young men. The former, in an exceedingly laughable contest, defeated the latter by a score of 17 to 8. It might be said in justice to the vanquished ones that the ladies were given a slight advantage in order to equalize the two teams.

Inasmuch as not all present could indulge in this sport, other forms of amusements were constantly in progress. The games over, all joined in a general good time. Music though not strictly classic was furnished during the whole day. When the sun became too warm the merry-makers seated themselves on the grass and listened to the "senior band," and sang songs in accompaniment.

About half past five the special train arrived at Woodlawn to take the seniors home. It was deemed best not to stay any later, as a number had to return early. The train arrived in town shortly before six and the happy seniors marched in a body to the university, where they showed that they had not entirely exhausted their strength in college and class yells.

Yesterday's "sneak" is pronounced by all as the best that has ever yet been undertaken. It was entirely void of all that stife and fighting which have characterized all former "sneaks." The unanimity with which all the seniors took up the work helped to make the event one long to be remembered.

Y. W. C. A. MEETING.

The meeting at the Y. W. C. A. room next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock will take the form of an "Information Meeting." The service is suggested by the American committee and similar services are being held by all associations throughout the United States. The subjects to be presented are, "The History of the Y. W. C. A. Movement," Helen Streeter; "The American Committee," Minnie Case; "The World's Committee," Ada Reynoldson.

These talks will be of great interest to all members of the association, and particularly to those who have recently joined, and all should make a special effort to be present.
