A paper will probably be circulated to ascertain the real wishes of the Laws on the subject.

Any girl wanting employment during the summer months will do well to hand in her name to the Y. W. C. A. secretary, Miss Weldy.

From now until May 23 the lecture periods in American history 18, will be given to the students for presentation of their semester papers.

Miss Bouton will speak to young women at the Y. W. C. A. room, Sunday, at 4 p. m. All young women should make an effort to be present.

Mr. Little, an editor of a western paper and formerly a student at the university, called on a number of student friends, while in town this week.

In the first meeting a banquet committee made a report favorable to having one during commencement week. It was decided not to have a banquet. The second meeting was called to reconsider the action, but nothing was done.

The Y. W. C. A. cabinet met Tuesday evening. All but two of the girls were present. The reports of the committees were read. That of the missionary committee was especially good, both in form and contents. The regularity with which bulletins for the Sunday meetings have appeared, and the improved appearance of the rooms were both commented upon. The finance committee reported one hundred and fifty-eight dollars on hand.

The matter of Geneva delegates was next mentioned. It was decided to send three girls, the association paying half of their expenses, also half of the expenses of the secretary. The report of the advisory board meeting was given and their recommendation that Miss Weldy be asked to retain her position as general secretary for next year was discussed. The motion to retain her next year was passed unanimously.

Captain Smoke held a meeting last night with the officers of the battalion in which the minor details regarding encampment were discussed.

J. S. Ellis is the author of a story which appears in the April number of the Western College magazine. Mr. Ellis is a member of Mr. Shedd's short story class, for which the story was written some time ago.

The Y. M. C. A. cabinet held a business meeting in the rooms last night and matters of importance were taken up which will materialize at some future date.

The Senior Lawyers held two business meetings yesterday afternoon. However, nothing was accomplished at either, because of the extreme amount of parliamentary law and debating.

The class in physics IV, enjoyed an examination Tuesday on electricity. Those who passed their examination will not be tested on electricity in the final examination at the close of the year.

Rev. Luther P. Ludden addressed the students at convocation yesterday morning on "Individuality." He impressed upon the students the necessity of always cultivating independence of thought and action which are always the factors in producing individuality.
