SOME FOOT BALL TALK

Necessities to a Winning Team
Point of View of a Foot Ball
Enthusiast--Timely Advice to Players.

The athletic board, the captain, the coach, the manager and every player must work hard, early and late and above all must work together. The athletic board can be counted upon to do its part, it has funds enough on hand to permit every legitimate expense which will help make a better team. It has no money to waste in extravagance, none to throw or to give away, but it can do more this year than ever before to supply some of the deficiencies in outfit and training which have existed hitherto.

The captain--nothing is lacking here. Captain Westover is the only man who has been honored by two terms as captain and those who know him best and have watched his handling of last year's eleven the most closely, will unite in saying that the honor came to him because he stood out above all other players as the man for the place. He knows football from the ground up, plays a heady game and has the respect of every man on the team. Mr. Booth will for the third successive season be the varsity head coach. The record of the teams of 1900 and 1901, teams which have lost no games except to Minnesota and Wisconsin, is ample testimony to the efficient discipline and telling work of our popular coach.

Our success, of course, despite good captain, good coach and competent management, must in the last analysis depend upon the players themselves and our prospects are not so bright in this respect as we could wish.

Several players who were towers of strength to the team last year will be absent this season; indeed it seems likely that more new men will make up our team than for the past two seasons.

With this prospect before us a few words to the football squad from which the varsity will be chosen, may not be amiss.

If you are going to play football, and if you have any signs of promise in you or any inclinations whatever in that direction we want you to join the squad, begin at once and stick to it as hard and as steadily as if you were working for Phi Beta Kappa.

Come out at the first call, come out to every practice and do painstaking and strenuous work.

The best thing you will get out of football is its discipline and the physical and mental betterment, which come from close, steady practice of any worthy thing. You cannot achieve these results in the fullest degree if you come out only two or three times a week or come twenty minutes late at every practice.

Your "spirit" will be one of the chief points considered in selecting men for the varsity squad. No matter how much knowledge of the game you may have or how experienced you may be, your value will depend chiefly on your willingness to subordinate yourself to coach and captain and make your interests secondary to those of the team. Don't play football for a sweater, for the trips which you may take with the team, for free admission to all games.

Play because you love to play, because you want the drill and the discipline which come with it and because you are proud to represent Nebraska on victorious fields.

College Settlement.

The College Settlement association has prosecuted its work during the summer vacation and now has its new building so far completed as to be occupied. The new house is located at 200 South 20th St. Mr. C. E. Prevey, the head resident, moved into the house in July and has begun active work. A boy's club has been organized with a membership of nineteen to start with. The game room and reading room are open every evening and are visited by the boys and girls of the neighborhood in large numbers. They are also clamoring for classes in manual training, in music, etc.

The board of directors of the association wish to secure the aid of a number of students in conducting classes and clubs and attending club rooms. Rooms at the settlement will be furnished to a few students in return for co-operation in this social work. It is expected that a number of students will undertake some work out of a benevolent interest. Especial advantages will be open to any who wish to combine this practical experience with the course in charities in the university with a view to entering the field of philanthropy as a profession.

Miss Anna Lytle, '97, of Greenwood is visiting the Pi Phis.

Mr. Chas. Bracelet, '02, one of the interstate debaters last year, is engaged on the Lincoln high school faculty as instructor in history.

OFFICE FORCE BUSY

Second Day of Registration Shows
Light Results--New Students
Well Handled--Citizens Uae Bureau.

The second day's work in the executive offices was productive of a higher registration, but still not an increase over last year. The new students as well as old seem slow about getting registered and are tardy in presenting themselves at the registrar's desk.

The following is the comparative registration for the same day last year and this:

1901, matriculations.....	105
1902, matriculations.....	103
1901, registrations.....	191
1902, registrations.....	154
1901, total matriculations.....	202
1902, total matriculations.....	192
1901, total registrations.....	342
1902, total registrations.....	288

The office force was continually busy from early morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the regular closing hours. Those in charge of registration feel highly gratified at the smoothness at which the registrees have been handled, there being no hitch in any way, and no crowding or jamming. However, there has been no rush yet and the registering clerks may still have an opportunity to display their ingenuity in handling a large crowd.

With the use of the new system of registration the days of "rushing" of previous years is a thing of the past and by considerable lessens the spectacular part of entering college for the first time. As one member of the registration force said, "It is more business like than ever attempted previously in the history of the institution. It is more like transacting business with a banking house than anything else, this registration." The main halls are crowded, however, with numbers of old and new students, the first ones greeting old friends and aiding new ones, while the latter are having their first experiences of college life. The old-time noisy crowd of hustling professors and students has given place to an orderly procession passing in one door of the registration office and out of the other.

Y. M. C. A. bureau of information was kept busy throughout the day with the multitude of applications made to it for work and places for room and boarding. The business men and housewives of Lincoln are realizing more every year how much the university means to them and are improving the opportunity offered them of getting help of all kinds from young men and women who are conscientious in their work because they have an object in view in life. Along with the bureau work the association is conducting a campaign for Bible and mission study class registration.

University Improvements.

During the summer months the university has had a number of important changes made in the arrangements of the various departments. With the addition of the medical course the zoology department finds itself pressed for room. Accordingly the room formerly occupied by Professor Bruner with the work in taxidermy has been given over to a laboratory for anatomical studies. The taxidermy laboratory has been placed in new quarters on the third floor of the mechanics hall and in the southeast corner. New windows have been cut in the roof and the room arranged especially for this line of work in the anatomical laboratory. It has also a cement floor.

In mechanic arts hall rooms Nos. 301 and 308 have been divided and partitioned off making four rooms for class room work. The latter will thus make two drawing rooms for the mechanic students. Chairs will be placed in the middle of the rooms for class lecture work.

The ladies' rest room has been materially improved during the summer, being tinted and repainted. With the changes it is one of the most delightful retreats on the campus and will be a fitting place for the young ladies to gather and where they may take their friends and visitors at the university. The office of Miss Barr has undergone the same general improvement. The ladies' locker room is also tinted and redecorated.

The office of the commandant of cadets has been thoroughly cleaned, repainted and redecorated.

In the library building the room formerly occupied by the readers for Professor Fling in European history will be used this year conjointly with the readers in English literature. The room, previous to this year used by the latter will be placed at the disposal of the new medical department and will be used as a departmental library in medicine. Several hundred books belonging to the Nebraska medical society were removed during the summer to the city library, where they will be more at the disposal of the general public. The university medical library will be increased as it is seen fit. Dr. Peters of the state farm has given a valuable set of medical books to the department.

While the university buildings were in the least use the gas, water and steam pipes have undergone many changes and the whole system has been submitted to a more or less thorough overhauling. The campus connections have also been improved.

The old students will notice the iron railings which have been placed during the summer. These will necessitate an occasional lengthening of the way across the campus and have been put up to keep the people off the grass, and the consequent wearing down of paths across the campus.

The benches about the campus will be insured a new lease on life and popularity by the new coat of paint which has been administered to them recently.
