The "Daily Nebraskan" will, with this issue make its last appearance as a sheet gratuitously given to everyone and anyone. Monday morning the subscribers will find the paper delivered to them when they call at the proper place. Owing to extra work necessary in getting out the first issues, no definite and final arrangement has been perfected for the delivery of the sheet. Everyone will be able to obtain their paper sometimes between nine and ten o'clock every morning somewhere about university hall. This will be a central location and accessible to every subscriber. If you don't like the way it is done at first bear with the management for a short while until it can suit its patrons.

For the information of everyone who is unfamiliar with the organization of the paper we are willing to volunteer the following: The paper is published by the Hesperian Publishing company, which is incorporated under the laws of the state. The company is formed by stockholders shares being issued at five dollars. The latter were taken up at the end of the year 1901, when the company was organized. The stock is held by students, faculty members and alumni.

The direction of the paper rests in the hands of a board of directors which places the active management in the hands of a board of editors. The latter are directly responsible to the directors and stockholders. The paper is run on strictly business principles and seeks to be the official bulletin and medium of news of the university. These few words of explanation is meant for the enlightenment of everyone, be they old or new students, or anyone in any way interested in the paper.

The following item appeared in one of the Lincoln city papers some time previous to the opening of school this fall:

"When the university students begin to come back rents are likely to stiffen again appreciably. Room for a couple of thousand students must be found somewhere. The consequent crowding gives rise to a certain increase in rentals. Real estate men like to have the students here. They do not believe for a minute that the university is a detriment to the town. More food must be bought, more clothing must be handled, nearly every line of business feels the good of the presence of students in greater or less degree."

This prophecy has already been fulfilled and reports are to the effect that room rents and living expenses have already increased. Such a condition is one of those things which have to be endured, although it may not be entirely to the liking of the university students.

It has been remarked repeatedly that living expenses have been increased over those of only two years ago. With the broadening of the college life and the branching out of student thought into wider fields than books, there is an increased expenditure incurred by every individual.

The new students will not appreciate the difference as much as those who have been connected with college life in Nebraska for a longer period, though it may be some little circumstance from what they have expected through various sources of information. This is not meant to disturb the ideas, too suddenly, of those who will learn more of college life by experience, but to prepare them for what the year may bring forth.

Every student in the university who contemplates going into newspaper work should consult the instructor in Journalism and make arrangements for taking the course offered. Those who show themselves best fitted for this special line of work will be made use of upon the "Daily Nebraskan." In addition anyone who wishes to identify themselves actively in any way with the college "Daily" should consult the editor at their earliest possible convenience.

The "rushing" season is on again with all its interesting problems both to rushers and rushees. The desertion of the gymnasium for office registration lessens to a wonderful extent the manifest efforts of everyone in making themselves pleasant. The experiences to be gone through by some new students are lasting in the impressions they produce on the mind. It is a momentous decision in the college life of the individual when he or she decides to ally themselves to a certain coterie of friends and be one with them. With all the advice perhaps of several interested parties the new student finds himself in many strange situations which are greatly perplexing to him, and from which he will emerge with a decision which will more or less affect his career through college at least, and perhaps through life.

New shelving has been added to the stack room and reading room, which will accommodate about 3,000 more books.

The room heretofore used as a girls' lunch and rest room in the library basement has been converted into a faculty study room. It is provided with shelving, tables and chairs and any member of the faculty will find accommodation here for quiet study. Later in the year it is planned to use this room as a special study room for the interstate debaters and perhaps it may be available at certain hours as a seminar room for small classes in departments not now having seminar rooms available.
