Y. M. C. A. Employment Bureau.

That the Y. M. C. A. employment bureau is doing a good work among needy students is not doubted when the report of last year's work and the report of the work done this year during September is taken into consideration. According to the report of last year, work had been secured for students during the year that amounted to an equivalent of $3,000. The first report this year indicates that the work will exceed that of last year.

Thirty permanent positions and ten odd jobs have been given to students, varying from stenographic work to waiting table and tending fires. The permanent positions are equivalent to a money return of $85 per week, while the odd jobs have netted about $5.

It was formerly supposed that jobs secured by the bureau were of little or no value, but such is not the case. The aim of the bureau has been to demand good work for students at living wages and to get good conscientious men to fill those positions. It has succeeded in this to some extent. A down town merchant said that the men sent him by the Y. M. C. A. were better and neater men than those sent from any other school or college in town.

The bureau asks the aid of the student body and the faculty in furthering its influence and extending its usefulness among students. If you know of a likely job let the chairman know of it. If you know of a needy student give the chairman the facts. In order to meet those desiring to meet him the chairman will be at his desk in the Y. M. C. A. rooms daily from 10:30 to 11 daily, thus giving ample opportunity for all to see him.

Went Too Close to Danger.
One of the victims of the St. Pierre disaster was a French painter, Paul Merwert who was at Martinique on an artistic mission from the government. He ascended to the crater of Mont Pelee as late as April 28.
