By a resolution of the Seniors of Pennsylvania, the Freshmen will be required to wear black caps when in the vicinity of the university to distinguish them from the upper class men.

When you buy clothes go to some firm in whom you have confidence—take their word for it. Scarcely a young man that can finely discriminate as to quality.—Paine's Clothing store's suggestion.

For the first time in many years Oberlin has been spared witnessing a fierce struggle between the Sophs and Freshmen. This year they saw a more peaceable event when these two natural opponents joined in a friendly pig-roast.

In future the football practice at Michigan will be secret, except on Wednesdays, when the students will be admitted. The object of leaving the gates open that day is in order that the rooters may keep in touch with the progress and work of the eleven.

A souvenir album containing various photographs of interest about the university is in preparation. It will be ready for sale before long.

The department of American history has been so overcrowded that one day a class was forced to adjourn. Arrangements are being made for better accommodations.

Professor Caldwell is about to send a manuscript of "Civil Government of Nebraska," to the American Book company. It is an appendix to Peters Civil Government, and will be ready about January 1st.

An eastern institution is reaching after another of the members of the botanical staff, and there is consternation in that department. The matter will be decided within a few weeks, and in the meantime there will be much anxiety among the botanists.

Mr. Park having resigned his scholarship in American history, the position will be held by Miss Genevieve Marsh, a graduate of Smith College. Miss Marsh did post-work for some time and has had five years' experience teaching in an academy in Maine.

Professor L. E. Aylsworth, the head of the bibliographical branch of the American history department, is still adding to his library collections. The latest acquisitions are the Documentary history of the Constitution, just gotten out by the government, and a complete set of Theodore Roosevelt's writings.

Professors Caldwell and Cook, of the American history department, are rejoicing over the acquisition of several volumes from the late Justice Cooley's library. The latter were sold at auction last week, and although bids were submitted by nearly all members of the department, only the two mentioned were successful.

Messrs. Persinger and Aylsworth, instructors in American history, have been busy the last two or three weeks with the making of a set of maps to illustrate early colonial history. Printed maps of the later periods are quite numerous, but for the earliest phases of American history the modern instructor is as yet largely thrown upon his own resources, and to the filling of this gap the department here is devoting its spare moments and energy.

A. F. Woods, '90, chief of the division of plant physiology in the U. S. department of agriculture, and formerly assistant in botany at the university, called on Professor Bessey a few days ago. He is visiting experiment stations in the west, and is on his way to the east.

President Myers, of the Junior class, has seen fit to add two associate editors to the Sombrero board. They are John Tobin and William D. Pierce. Both are men of push, energy and literary ability, and excellent men for the places. With this addition the board stands, in members, the same as when first appointed.

A letter from J. V. Cortelyou, who received his masters' degree in '01, and now at Bamberg, Germany, states that he is just concluding a pleasure tour of two weeks, in which he visited Stuttgart, Ulm, Augsburg, Munich and other prominent cities. Mr. Cortelyou is studying at the Heidelberg University. He greatly enjoyed his work last year and will probably remain two years longer.

Professor Bessey went to Beatrice on Friday and gave a lecture on "Nature Study" to the teachers of the city in the afternoon. While in the city he looked into some of the departments of the high school, and reports that he found everything in fine order. He met many former students of the university, who are now among the teachers in the grades or the high school.
