REDSKINS' HAIR LIFTED

Haskell Team Suffers Hard Treatment in Nebraska — Cornhuskers Satisfy a Large Crowd.

Nebraska, 28. - Haskell, 0.

Before a crowd of about 4,000 enthusiastic spectators Nebraska triumphed over the husky red men Saturday by the score of 28 to 0, and thereby upheld her claim to supremacy in the Missouri valley.

Although the score was large and the Indians met a crushing defeat, yet those who were fortunate enough to witness the game saw one of the hardest games ever played in this city. Nebraska outplayed her opponents and excelled in all departments of the game, but the red men came to Lincoln determined to win and during the first part of the game they played with a fierceness that was enough to set Nebraska thinking. The Indians were swift, tricky and aggressive, but they could not overcome their well-trained opponents. The game put up by the varsity would do credit to almost any institution. The superior physical condition of the team was apparent by the number of substitutes played by Haskell. The team work was excellent, the best ever seen here. Our men went after the Indians from start to finish and when time was called the latter presented a gloomy appearance. Redwater, the great Indian guard became disgusted at the way things were going and "just quit." Nebraska's goal was in real danger but once and that was when Baine ran from the center of the field for what the crowd thought was a touch down. But Baine had gone out of bounds and consequently Nebraska's line remained unsullied.

The red men appeared on the field shortly before the hour and after working out a little retired to the shade of the south goal and wrapped in their red blankets patiently awaited their doom. At 3 o'clock Westover led his men onto the gridiron and the game began immediately.

The two sections of rooters and the band that had been making things lively on the east bleachers were hushed in expectation, and the immense crowd quietly awaited the kickoff.

Little need be said of the work of the team or of the individual excellence of every member. Every man played his game, and although the work of the men in the line was less spectacular than of those behind, it was position only that made it so.

THE GAME.

The Indians chose the south goal and kicked off 15 yards. Bell and Mickel made good gains and Cortelyou went around right end for 15 yards. On a fumble the Indians secured the ball, but failed to gain a yard and were forced to punt. Bender was unable to return, but on the first play carried two or three warriors for 15 yards. Mickel made 3 yards, but the palefaces lost ground on an offside play and later lost the ball on downs. The third down netted the Indians the necessary 5 yards, but the ball was lost on a fumble. Benedict punted and Falls returned 10 yards. On a double pass Baine made a spectacular run of 60 yards for a touchdown, but as he ran out of bounds the ball was brought back and given to Nebraska. Benedict punted, the Indians fumbled, and Cortelyou fell on the ball on the 3-yard line. Bender went over and the crowd counted the score. Benedict missed goal. In a conflict over the touchdown Baine was ruled out, and Gukey took his place.

The Indians kicked off to Bender, who failed to return. Captain Falls had his nose split and retired in favor of Le Mort. Benedict punted, the Indians failed to return and lost ground on a double pass. Punts were exchanged, and Nebraska secured the ball on a fumble. Westover made 25 yards through tackle. Further plays carried the ball to the 5-yard line, where it was lost. The Indians failed to gain, Nebraska secured the ball, and tried a place kick, which was blocked. The Indians punted out of danger and Nebraska again advanced to the 5-yard line, when time was called.

During the intermission the band pa-

THE WORK IN DEBATING

Men Getting Ready for Intellectual Battles—Secretary Reports Promising Future for Association.

The registration in the debating department shows an increase of 40 per cent over last year.

The secretary of the debating association announces that an effort will be made to have the questions for the preliminary contests definitely settled by December 1st.

The constitution of the debating association provides that all regularly matriculated students in the university shall be eligible for membership in the association, and participation in the preliminary contest upon the payment of a fee of $1.

The classes in first year debate are working with "Baker's Principles." After a thorough mastery of Baker the sections will be divided into squads and assigned questions. Through the courtesy of Professor Fogg these debates were open to visitors last year, and it is not unlikely that this privilege will be allowed this year.

A greater interest than usual is manifested on the part of the law students in the subject of preliminary debates. The secretary of the debating association says that present indications point to a registration of at least twenty-five from this department.

A large number of men have enlisted in the course in argumentative composition. This is a new course and hereafter will be made a requirement for entering the classes in debate. It is believed that as a result of this course the men will prove stronger in debate next year.

The four debating clubs are regularly meeting Saturday evenings in their respective halls with a considerable increase in attendance over last year.

The first of a series of inter-club debates was held last Saturday evening in Union hall, between the Maxwells and Unions. Movements are on foot looking toward similar contests with the other clubs. Inter-club debates prove of great value in other institutions, and it is hoped that a regular custom may be established here.

Messrs. Lee, Peters, Kutcher and Catlin will discuss "Resolved, That a system of compulsory arbitration should be adopted for settlement of labor disputes in the United States."

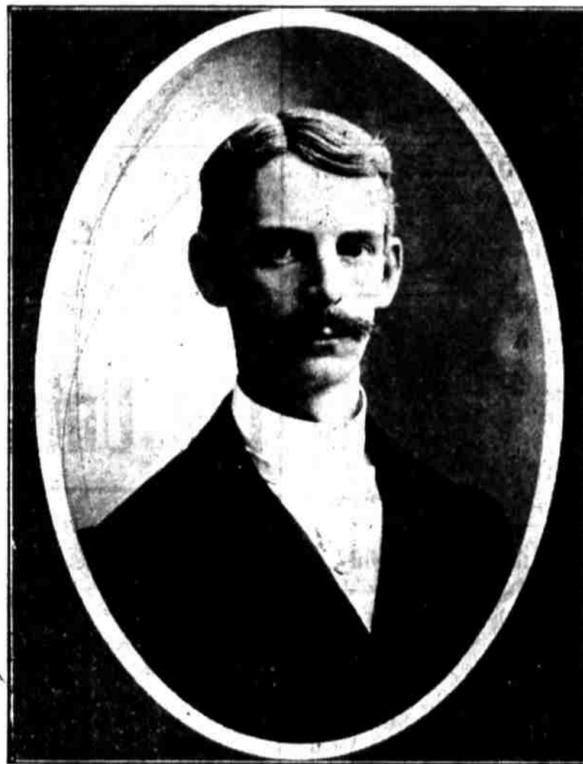

The other members will be assigned as soon as possible their respective questions.

Professors representing the debating departments in which the questions debated mainly lie, will act as critics. The benefit resulting from this criticism can not be overestimated, as members of last year's class will testify.

In the advanced debate there is greater activity than formerly. The members of the class have been divided into squads and beginning with Thursday, Nov. 6th, there will be a debate every following Thursday. The first question, "Resolved, That the anthracite coal mine operators should recognize the union," will be discussed by F. M. Hunter, J. F. Tobin, J. C. Doubt and J. T. Milek. The following Thursday W. F. Meier, G. A. Johnson, N. M. Cronin and N. J. Norton, will debate "Resolved, That President Roosevelt's plan for the federal control of corporations is preferable to any other system." A week later "Resolved, That publicity would be an effectual remedy for the evils of the so-called trusts," will be the bone of contention between B. G. Lewis, S. E. Black, Ira Ryner and M. L. Hart.

Professor Metcalf, last year an instructor in the department of botany, is now in Clemson College, South Carolina. He is still studying the bacterium, which he found in Nebraska sugar beets.

The professors of the university have been requested to hand in their lists of lectures to the executive office. These lists will be used as references whenever a request is received from outside for a lecturer on some special subject.

WILLIAM K. FOWLER.
Candidate for Re-election to State Superintendency of Public Schools.

State Superintendent Fowler is a good man. I know of no better anywhere filling a like position. He is not bound by tradition, and is doing good work toward the advancement of the standard of Nebraska's schools.—Chancellor E. Benj. Andrews.

William K. Fowler has elevated the office of superintendent of public instruction to a place of first importance among the state offices. It remains last on the list, but the superintendency is no longer the "tail" of the state ticket. It is an office of great influence and responsibility, and when a man is found who measures up to the possibilities of the place it would be a sin against the children of the state to neglect to give him an additional term.—Nebraska State Journal.
