It may be of interest to some to know that students of the engineering departments are greatly sought for by manufacturing companies. Railroads also desire young men from the mechanical engineering department to work in their repair and construction shops.

First Debate Tomorrow.

The first debate of the year in English 13, the advanced course in debate, will take place in the old chapel tomorrow afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock, on "Whether or not the anthracite Coal operators should recognize the union." This question will be argued for the affirmative by John Tobin and Fred Hunter and for the negative by J. C. Doubt and John T. Milek. The second hour will be given to criticism of the debate by Professor Fogg and by Professor Caldwell. Professor Fogg announced yesterday that, as last year, visitors to the debates in English 11a and 13 will be welcome.

Yesterday's Convocation.

The Reverend Dr. Tuttle, of the First Congregational church, addressed the students at convocation yesterday. Dr. Tuttle took as the subject of his remarks: "What Do We Get Out of Life?" Three young men stand before us. We ask them what they expect to do when through school. Two of them say, "Make money." The third one answers, "Help others and in so doing help myself." A man may enrich himself and still be poor. A man only gets out of life what he puts in. Dr. Tuttle declared that service was the greatest ideal of life. American men are such men. We find our most successful men in all walks of life subscribing to this ideal. Abraham Lincoln was a serving man. In conclusion Dr. Tuttle said: "Do something for somebody's sake." The attendance was poor, owing to many having gone home to vote.

News of Battalion.

The cadet battalion appeared in uniform at drill Monday evening for the first time. The regulation uniform for privates and non-commissioned officers is just the same as last year, while in the officers' uniform sky-blue trousers have been substituted for the cadet blue. The second sergeant of each company, in addition to his duties as right guide, has been made acting company quartermaster, and so wears an extra sergeant's stripe.

Captain Chase and Captain Hull of the Pershing Rifles acted as judges at the monthly drill-down of the Lincoln Light Infantry Monday evening. A number of university cadets are members of the Light Infantry and rank well in the company. The medal was won by Sergeant Hancock, and was presented by Captain Chase. After the drill-down the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Lieutenant Davidson has had charge of company B during the absence of Captain Ringer, who is playing on the varsity.

Notices have been sent out from the office of the military department ordering all delinquent cadets to report at once for drill. Unless this is attended to no credit will be given for the work.

Captain McGeachin, of the artillery detachment, is organizing a squad for artillery drill.
