Settled a Dispute.

At a recent meeting of the Entomological society in London the president, G. H. Verrall, told an amusing story to prove that a knowledge of insects may even be useful in settling questions in literary history. Commentators on the works of Robert Louis Stevenson were trying in vain to discover whether the notes made by him in a certain book were written before or after he took up his residence in Samoa. It happened that a fly had been squeezed between the pages and when Mr. Verrall saw it he instantly recognized it as it belongs to a species peculiar to the Polynesian islands. That settled the question.

Record for Slow Shipbuilding.

A record in slow shipbuilding is reported from Spain. Ten years ago a cruiser, the Prince Sade Asturias, was put on the stocks, and a few days ago the minister of marine informed King Alfonso that the vessel would be ready to take part in the forthcoming naval review in the Mediterranean.
