It has been more or less interesting during the present closing football season to watch the attitudes taken by gridiron critics on the strongest papers in the country. They seem to change their minds every so often as to what shall be the final outcome of the sought for championship. The Minneapolis papers have been drawing the ire of the students of Minnesota, the latter charging the critics with inconsistency.

The Chicago papers are watched by Nebraska people with more concern than others. They have been the most tardy in recognizing Nebraska athletics and in case they do, it is only grudgingly. Other western papers have been more willing to give Nebraska the place she now claims, that of the holder of football honors west of the Mississippi.

The Chicago papers for some reason have tried to wholly ignore Nebraska football, being entirely engrossed with its more neighboring institutions. They forget that something good can come out of the region of the plains. It is amusing, for those who do not see a game to sit in their offices comfortably and by scanning some jumbled reports state the comparative strength of opposing teams, as in the case of Knox.

Nothing short, of course, than Nebraska advancing into the enemies territory and putting them all to rout will bring some people to their senses. The papers forget that Nebraska sent a guard to Chicago this year who was accepted without question as a man worthy of the Chicago team. The papers following the Thanksgiving games and the Chicago conference will be carefully read and digested this year as to football reports and news.

The European history department is taking strict measures to prevent vacating from being too long.

The executive department has ruled that the forty hour scheme does not apply to English and English literature taken together.

The German School System.

Professor Fossler of the German department compared the German and American school systems at convocation yesterday. The fundamental distinction, he said, is that German schools and universities are provided for by law. Even the examinations are held according to law.

The entire system is under the supervision of a minister of education, who presides over a board of about twenty men, who in turn have charge of a subordinate board. The same officials have charge of the department of medicine, ecclesiastics, and education.

The subordinate boards consist of from three to five men, whose duty it is to superintend school work more closely than their superiors. In addition to these boards each town has a board which attends to financial matters. It is seen that the people have nothing to do with the school system, the arrangement of courses even being entirely in charge of the board. A uniformity is thus secured which would be impossible with any other system.

It requires nine years for a student to complete a course in one of the preparatory schools after which he may enter a college or university. Professor Fossler said there was no doubt that a student who had studied a subject for nine years would know something about it.

Professor Fossler will later discuss the higher institutions of learning.

School of Music Notes.

Miss Malme Hillian spent Sunday in Wahco.

Olive Dobson's father visited her on Friday.

Florence Fiske will go to Beatrice for the Thanksgiving recess.

Vida Leamer will spend her Thanksgiving vacation at West Point.

Nellie House has returned from Hendon, where she was called on account of her father's illness.

The largest registration in the history of the school was had a week ago yesterday, at the beginning of the present term.

Mrs. Howell, of Centerville, Ia., will visit her daughter, Miss Winifred, at the conservatory during the Thanksgiving holidays.

The school of music will give two recitals between now and the Christmas holidays. The dates are not yet definitely decided upon. One, a Schubert recital, will be given by the faculty, and the other will be a regular students' recital.

Another Challenge.

A challenge for debate was received yesterday from Highland Park College, of Des Moines, Ia. In the letter the secretary of the college debating association expressed the desire of that institution to enter into contests with a larger number of colleges and universities which have gained a reputation of being strong in debate.

Secretary Meier of the university debating association refused to accept the challenge, because Nebraska already has either arranged or has under contemplation work that will keep the debating squads busy for the present year.

Mr. Meier reports that correspondence is progressing rapidly and the board hopes to have all questions for inter-state debate settled early in December.

The Long Hipped Corsets

frequently extend 10 inches below the waist line and give a trim, close-fitting appearance to the dress skirt. Some have hose supporters attached at sides and front, which hold it still more closely to the figure.

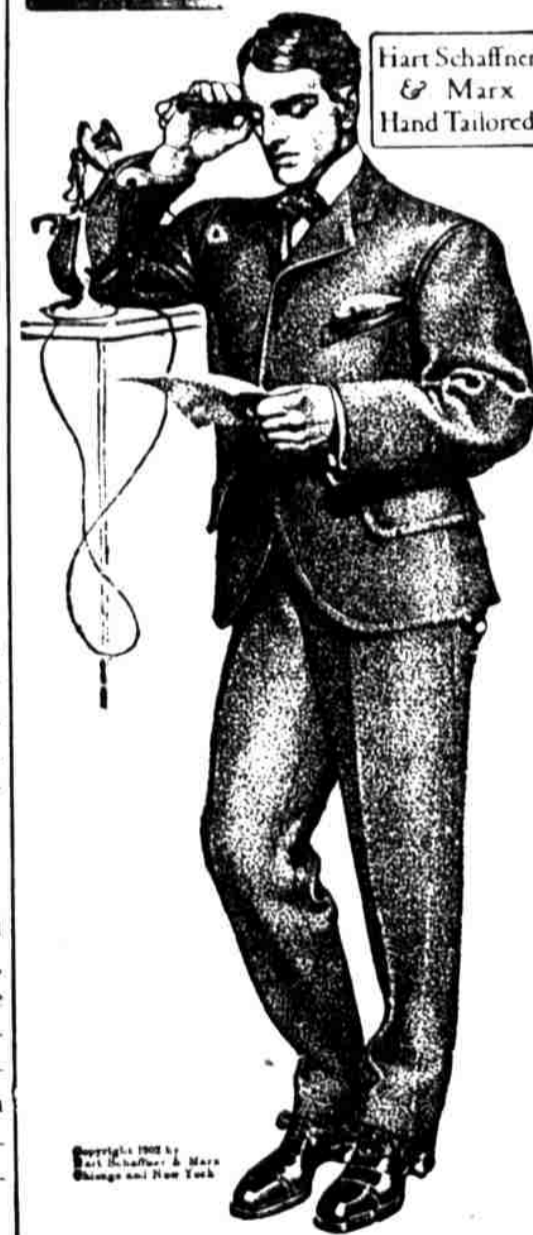

In the newest corsets the steels are moulded by hand and closely follow the lines of the natural figure. A new gown should be fitted over a perfect corset and cannot be expected to fit as well if the corset is purchased after the dress is made.

It will pay you to visit our corset department on the second floor and see those new styles.

THE KABO illustrate! is made of a fine quality coutille in drab or white, and of sateen in black; bias gored; straight front; satin ribbon trimmings; new hip extension and hose supporters attached $2.50.
