Mr. Letherby, Nebraska's famous twirler, will not be in school this year. He has signed with the Western league.

Isaac Pollard of Nehawka, father of M. M. Pollard, '94, on whose farm the noted Indian flint mines have been discovered, recently visited the Historical society rooms.

A large crowd assembled at convocation yesterday with the expectation of hearing Hon. Edward Rosewater. They were disappointed, however, as Mr. Rosewater was not present.

For the last few days school children have been visiting the art exhibition in large numbers. Wednesday morning several hundred children took in this pleasant and instructive treat, while their teachers carefully guarded them and helped them to enjoy the beauty of the pictures.

Presbyterian Reception

Invitations are now out to the students in the university being members of the Presbyterian churches at home or in the city and to all those who have inclinations to this denomination for a large reception to be tendered them and other students in the city by the First Presbyterian church of Lincoln on next Tuesday evening. The aim is to make this one of the enjoyable events of the school year.

Mr. Joseph E. Wing, a prominent writer for the Breeder's Gazette, is making a series of addresses at the State Farm.

Miss Myrtle Price has been elected principal of the high school at Wayne to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of one of the teachers during the holidays.

W. T. Horne, '98, has spent two years in Alaska and has returned to the land of civilization, where he is now engaged in redeeming some of the desert of southern California by irrigation. He is at Imperila, near the Mexican line.

While in the east Dr. Clements was asked to undertake the preparation of a portion of the matter for the great work to be known as "The Flora of North America." The work is under the charge of the foremost systematic botanists of the country.

"Caldwell's Civil Government of Nebraska" is the appendix of the recently published Nebraska edition of Peterman's text-book on civil government. Mr. Caldwell's work is unique in the method of procedure and follows an altogether different line from most of the other works on civil government now in use.

The receipts of the football season at Harvard netted the Athletic association $38,000.

The presence of a fifteen-year-old boy at the University of Michigan has excited much comment. Though he is under the age limit, he insisted that he be given the examinations, and not only did he succeed in entering, but had thirty-two hours' advance credit, which is equivalent to one year's work. The boy's home is in Indianapolis, and both his parents are Michigan graduates.—Purdue Exponent.
