Leland Stanford has just dedicated a magnificent memorial church, builded in honor the University's founders. The Daily Palo Alto marks the event by a splendidly illustrated special edition devoted to the church building and the dedication exercises,

The University of California will devote $425,000 in the construction of a Hall of Physiology to be completely equipped with research laboratories, salt water aquaria, etc. Professor Jacques Loeb will have charge of this department, the duties of which he assumed January 1, 1903.

The Yale Club of Chicago has established four annual scholarships at Yale University in the academic and scientific departments. They amount to $600 each and are to be given to students resident in Illinois. The beneficiaries will give notes for the amounts of the scholarship payable at intervals after graduation.

The trustees of the Carnegie Institute in their first annual meeting held in Washington on November 25, 1902, voted the following appropriations: $200,000 for grants for research, $40,-000 for publications, $50,000 for administration and $100,000 to be placed in the reserve fund. The new book containing the reports of various committees and other material of general interest is in course of preparation.

Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Herter, of New York City, have given $25,000 to Johns Hopkins University to found a lectureship in the medical department for the purpose of promoting a better knowledge of the researches of foreign investigators in medical science. The Board of Trustees of the Iowa State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, at a recent meeting, decided to erect a central building for administration and general purposes, at a cost of $225,000; an agricultural building at a cost of $200,000; a fireproof addition to the Agricultural hall 60 by 100 feet; a pavilion for agronomy and animal husbandry to cost $50,000, and a suitable heating plant to cost $65,000. The sums are to be derived from the one-fifth mill building tax granted by the general assembły.

University of Wisconsin newspaper--dom lives a strenuous life. The Daily Cardinal announced on Friday its suspension until the end of examination week. Saturday an issue of the paper appeared, full of all kinds of startling announcements, advertisements, and interviews. The Cardinal people were as greatly surprised as anyone, but soon located the responsibility upon a rival paper, The Sphinx. It is declared to be "the biggest hoax ever perpetrated at the university," and was accomplished by means of a "bogus" Cardinal staff and numberless editorial "forgeries."

Ames (Iowa) Student: The idea of paying a football coach $4,000 for about ten weeks work - 1 not seem to take well at Wisconsin, and their athletic board has tendered the position of head coach to Arthur Curtis at a salary of $1,800. Probably there is not February 10th, at 1 p. m., in old another coach in the country that has chapel. Ralph W. Buck, President.

been as consistent in his work or has turned out as many first-class teams as Phil King has in the time he has been with Wisconsin. The board did not take kindly to the idea of putting football coaching so strongly upon a professional basis. This idea of salaried coaching is the main point of difference between football in the east and in the west. Head coaches at Yale and Harvard are always graduate and receive no salary. The assistant coaches are graduate players and in nearly all cases their services are gratis. The fact that an eastern coach gets a chance to help make a team at his Alma Mater is considered ample pay for his services. If Wisconsin picks her issistant coaches from among her old graduates, she will then have a complete graduate system and her action will be one that should be followed by a constantly increasing number of the western schools. Each institution would always have a few old players who would be willing to make a little sacrifice for a couple of months in the fall and the system should prove as successful in the west as it has in the east.
