Those of Other Days

The following list of the members of the first class (1897) to receive the Nebraska University teachers' certificate, and their present occupations, will be of special interest to University alumnae:

Maude Atkinson—Mrs. L. G. Thayer, Mercur, Utah.

B. S. Hayden—Principal of schools, Palmyra, Neb.

Cora F. Smith—Formerly fellow in botany, Lincoln, Neb.

Mrs. Ellen Hart Bentley—Wife of R. C. Bentley, Worcester, Mass.

Robert H. Graham—Superintendent of city schools, Crown Point, Neb.

Chas. W. Philpott—Head of department of physics, Lincoln high school.

Mary Ann Spurck—Director of physical training for girls, Lincoln high school.

W. R. Hart—Professor of psychology and pedagogy, State Normal school, Peru, Neb.

Geo. H. Whaley—Ex-superintendent Neligh, Neb., now in business at Columbus, Neb.

Rufus C. Bentley—Professor of Latin and Greek, and Dean of the Academic faculty, Clark University, Worcester, Mass.

Jones (returning after an absence of twenty years).—"And where is Charley Moore?"

Resident Grad.—"He went abroad for his health, and never came back."

Jones.—"Was he an invalid?"

Resident Grad.—"No, a defaulter."

Professor (lecturing)—"Copernicus was a man of superior genius. Not content was he to lead a narrow existence among his fellow men and conform to their fallacious beliefs. On the contrary, he rose high above them."

Inquisitive Freshman.—"Did they hang him, professor?"

The Other Side

He (reading).—"There was a look of determination in the young man's eye. His cheeks were lit with a fierce glow. He clutched his rifle desperately, and now his purpose was evident. Raising the piece, he took deliberate aim and shot his mother —" She (interrupting).—"Oh, the brute!" He (resuming).—"A chicken for dinner."

First Post-graduate.—"What's young Gregg doing now? Heard anything about him lately?"

Second Post-graduate.—"Last I heard of him he was preparing men for life in the future."

First P. G.—"You don't mean to say he's entered the ministry?"

Second P. G.—"No, he's started a boarding house."

Prof. Cynicus.—"So young Irig is to be married, is he? Well, what on earth will he live on?"

Crusty Assistant.—"Humph! On his father, of course."
