IN REVERENT MEMORY.

Many Friends Pay Last Tribute to Miss Smith.

Memorial hall was crowded Sunday afternoon with the friends of the late Miss Ellen Smith, gathered with her visiting relatives to pay their last respects to the memory of one of the oldest and most faithful servants of the University. On the platform masses of flowers surrounded an oil portrait of Miss Smith, painted by Miss Hayden. The services were more commemorative than eulogistic. Dr. J. E. Tuttle followed the solos of Mr. Willbur Starr with a talk on the two-fold character of the late registrar—the stern and forbidding aspect she presented in the performance of her official duties, and the sweet and kindly disposition which won for her the lasting friendship of those who knew her in her home and social life. The helpfulness and nobility of her personal life and the loyalty and efficiency of her official life were commended as worthy of both praise and emulation.

The remains of Miss Smith were shipped last night to the old family home at Orwell, Ohio, where they will rest beside those of her mother.

The State Historical society took advantage of its opportunities and had a death mask of Miss Smith made Saturday. Miss Smith has been in the employ of the state for so many years and has been so closely connected with the University that the historical society thought it appropriate to get a mask made and place a cast of the late registrar in the historical rooms below the library. John T. Milek, a student of the law school, who has done some work along that line and who is somewhat of an artist, was secured to take the impression. The result was a good one which Mr. Milek thinks will be a very good cast in spite of the fact that the face did not look quite natural. If results prove entirely satisfactory, two casts will be made from the mask, one of which will be sent to Miss Smith's nephew in Chicago and the other retained at the University.

Palladians Visit Wesleyan.

The Palladian Literary Society went out to Wesleyan Saturday night and gave a program before the Orphelian Society of that institution. About forty Palladians attended, and a much larger number of Orphelians. After the program refreshments were served and everybody had a good time. The Palladians are very enthusiastic in their praise of the hospitality of the Wesleyan society, and it is hoped that more meetings of this kind will be held in the future. The program, which was greatly enjoyed by all, was as follows:

Trombone solo.....Mr. Clare Cornell
 Recitation.....Mr. Filley
 Original story.....Miss Flora Bullock
 Girls Quartet.....Misses Shinn, Nelson, Colwell and Hunting
 Paper—"Wind Care".....Mr. Edward Roe
 Recitation.....Miss Hawxby
 Instrumental solo.....Miss Boose

Chancellor on "Washington."

Chancellor Andrews addressed a large and enthusiastic audience at the city Y. M. C. A. men's meeting, held at the Oliver Sunday afternoon. The parquet was occupied principally by members of G. A. R., University battalion and Lincoln Light Infantry. Secretary Mayne presided. The University Glee Club aided in the singing of patriotic hymns, and Mr. Steckelberg rendered two violin selections in such a finished manner as to win tremendous applause.

The chancellor spoke on "George Washington," pointing out the traits of his character which caused the American people to honor him more than any other American statesman. In the first place, said the speaker, George Washington was at all periods of his remarkable career something more than a politician. Lincoln was at one time a politician, but after a time he became a great statesman. Washington was never a politician. Another important trait of Washington's character was his many-sidedness. He was great in war and great in peace. It was due, in a great measure, to Washington's strong character and statesmanship that the thirteen colonies were held together during the years immediately following the Revolution. Washington's great personality inspired confidence in the men who came in contact with him. He possessed a reserve force which was not expressed even in the great deeds and works of the man. A third cause of Washington's greatness was his firm faith in God. He believed, as we believe, that he was struggling in a righteous cause, and that success would ultimately crown his labors.

After the address Mr. Steckelberg rendered another selection. Rev. Rowlands then gave the benediction. The meeting was a success in every way, as was shown by the interest and appreciation of the large audience.

Juniors Elect Miss Van Zandt.

The juniors met again yesterday morning for the purpose of electing officers, and succeeded in choosing a president in the person of Miss Anna M. Van Zandt. Considerable time was taken up at the beginning of the meeting in discussing whether the class should continue the election where it left off at the last session, or rescind the action taken at that meeting and proceed to renominate. After a sharp parliamentary scrap, the motion to rescind carried. Mr. Dwight Pierce and Miss Van Zandt were nominated for president. The latter was elected on the first ballot. She responded in a few fitting words to a call for "speech." Mr. Borg and Mr. Cornell were nominated for vice-president, but it was necessary to adjourn before the vote was counted. The meeting adjourned until today at 10 a. m., when it is hoped to finish the election.

BRILLIANT PROGRAM.

Glee Club's Splendid Concert Before Small Audience.

The University Glee Club, which has been training for several months under the direction of Professor Starr, gave its first concert in Memorial hall Saturday night. The program was an excellent one and had been arranged with especial care, because it was expected that the University people would anticipate a good entertainment and turn out in large numbers to encourage the club as well as to be entertained. The club did its part thoroughly and presented a program that would be appreciated by any audience. The students and city people, however, did not turn out and fill the hall. The student and faculty element was lacking to a noticeable extent. The center aisle was partly filled and a few seats on the side aisles and in the galleries were occupied.

The program consisted of eleven numbers, solos, quartettes, with a reading by Mr. Bates and a mandolin solo by Mrs. Starr. The music was diverse, representing the humorous, the pathetic, the gay and the sad. Two numbers, "His Funeral's Tomorrow" and "The Grasshopper," a dramatic cantata, furnished much amusement. The latter number introduced McCulloch as Miss Hopper, Brockway as Aunty Hopper, Stull as the Turkey Gobbler and Chessington as the Bumble Bee. Four ballads were sung—German, Scotch, Irish and English—which told the story of the grasshopper on the sweet potato vine, his death and so on. Aunty Hopper and Miss Hopper, dressed in appropriate attire, were a source of much enjoyment. The club received encore after encore to which they cheerfully responded.

The concert was a brilliant success in every way, but from a financial point of view. The management hoped to secure a good audience Saturday night that would give the club a start on its contemplated trip to Omaha, Wahoo, Hastings and several other cities of the state. Saturday night's entertainment, however, merely paid expenses. What the club will do now is a question. The manager said yesterday: "One thing is sure, we will not sing again in Lincoln."

Gordon Will Coach.

The athletic board voted, at last night's meeting, to engage Eddie Gordon to coach the baseball team. Mr. Gordon's ability is well known, and with the experience he has had on Western league teams he will be of great service to the nine. Eddie takes a deep personal interest in the University and will do his best to build up a winning team. The baseball manager was authorized to arrange for the eastern trip, which will occupy two weeks. The track manager was authorized to arrange for the meet with South Dakota at Sioux City and the meet with Kansas at Lawrence.
