University News Service.

Yale News: We believe that every college newspaper should be the authority for all the news of that college which is given to the outside press. If the News can be put in such a position as to be able to give out all Yale news, with the assurance that what is given out in that way is official, the paper itself will not only be strengthened, but there will be much less danger of college affairs being misinterpreted, as they so often have been in the past. It is with this idea in view that we ask the co-operation of all men who are closely in touch with all branches of University affairs.

The Nebraskan would recommend to its Yale contemporary the method now in use by Nebraska University. All official items reach the press through a series of "news letters," issued in daily and weekly editions from the executive office. Through the work of this branch of the office the University field is now thoroughly covered from day to day, and the resulting information boiled down to appropriate proportions for newspaper use. It is a very satisfactory method when under efficient management (as at present is happily the case), and serves much better than an attempt to furnish outside papers with University information through the ever-changing and more or less non-continuous news-channel of the college publication.

On one other point, however, the Nebraskan is less satisfied. It feels that the University daily should be in enough closer touch with University affairs to enable it to "scoop" the city dailies on a great many important items of news. This is not the present condition, however, owing partly to the daily having not as yet gained an "inside track," and partly to the fact that the reporters for the city papers are themselves old Uni men, and therefore well acquainted with the ins and outs of University newsdom. In spite of these evident handicaps, and the appearance of the Daily some three or four hours after the city papers are usually read, we have already managed to get ahead of the latter on two or three good items within the past three weeks, and hope with the increase in number and efficiency of the staff to do so much oftener during the remainder of the year.

I. S. C. Student: Some of our states seem determined to curb the attendance at state institutions by increasing the tuition fees under the plea that expenses have grown so much as to make this course necessary. Engineering students at Minnesota were badly handicapped a short time ago by a large increase in tuition and now the ways and means committee in the Kansas legislature reports a bill that requires a yearly payment from all students of the agricultural college and the normal school in both of which tuition is now free. Expenses have doubtless grown but legislatures ought to display enough wisdom in devising means to meet them without enacting measures that will discourage many worthy students from attending these state institutions.

Minnesota Has Her Troubles.

(Minnesota Daily.)

The belligerent attitude towards the university, which characterizes a majority of the Minnesota legislature, shows itself every day, and it is feared by many that this attitude will show itself in no uncertain manner when the university appropriation bill is taken up for consideration. The reason for this apparent hostility to university interests is hard to determine. But it has been found that the greatest opposition comes from the country members, who seem to have the idea that the university is only a money spending institution and that the benefits derived are not at all equal to the amount expended in its maintenance. It seems to be due principally to a lack of appreciation and knowledge of the work that is being done by the university and as soon as the people can be educated to understand these things the sooner will these hostilities cease.

Yesterday's Exercises:

Convocation attendants enjoyed an unusual treat yesterday morning, and those present were most enjoyably entertained. Mr. N. K. Griggs of this city gave a select reading of several of his own poems. Mr. Griggs is possessed of a delivery remarkably entertaining and admirably suited to the rendering of his unique productions. The first reading was descriptive of the great blizzard that swept over the country in 1888 in which so many people lost their lives. An encore was responded to by a recital of the story of "Silent Jo and the Bronchos." Both poems are typical of western life and were much enjoyed.
