Local and Personal

In cap and gown they graduate,
A host of seniors, grave, sedate,
Remaining true to college lore,
Traditions set long years before
In proper style they emulate.

For 'tis a present senior trait
To find a dealer, compensate
Him well, then leave the college door
In cap and gown.

Back to the dealer ambulate
And leave the toggery: for Fate
May will the class of Nineteen-four
Should also stand upon life's shore,
Its stormy seas to contemplate,
In cap and gown.
—The Lantern.

The faculty of the agricultural school will entertain the students of that department this evening at the state farm.

The University authorities are considering the question of repairs for the chemistry building and expect to apply to the legislature for an appropriation for carrying out much needed changes.

A very interesting little circular has been issued by the Nebraska historical society, setting forth what the society has done in the last ten years, its plans, some of its methods of work, and its present needs.

The Cosmopolitan magazine is soon to publish an article on the "Supremacy of State Universities." Nebraska University will be represented by a cut of a campus photograph including the library building.

Albert P. Brigham, professor of geology at Colgate, an old friend of Dr. Condra, is getting out a volume on physiography and American history, and has written for a campus scene of the University of Nebraska.

Lacout's larger geology text, which is being revised by Professor Fairchild of Syracuse, N. Y., will contain a larger number of cuts from the geological department of Nebraska University than from any other institution in the United States.

Beach Jones has been very ill during the past week, being at one time threatened with pneumonia. Acting upon his physician's advice, he will discontinue his studies in the University for a time, and leaves today for his home in Dunbar.

Since the arrival of a new member in the physics department, Dr. Brace is discussing with him some very important problems which had before escaped the professor's observation. Dr. Brace says the little fellow is very active and shows the true spirit of a physicist.

H. E. Harry is rejoicing over the recovery of his overcoat, which mysteriously disappeared from the cloak room in the chemistry room Monday. When he first noticed its disappearance he at once informed the police, who, after some little investigation found the missing coat in one of the pawnshops in the city.

Mr. P. R. Bullard, Brown '97, representing the Scarborough Publishing company, has written to Chancellor Andrews requesting the names of several active and able students who desire lucrative positions during next summer's vacation. An inquiry at the executive office will secure the details of Mr. Bullard's offer for anyone desiring to make arrangements for such summer work.

A Weekly Open Period.

As the University program since the five-hour per week drill requirement went into effect no longer offers any generally open period and as some such period is necessary and demanded for mass and class meetings, conferences between students and instructors, and other similar ends, it is, upon conference, deemed wise to devote all Monday convocation periods to the uses named. Beginning with next week, therefore, no convocation exercises of the usual nature will occur on Mondays. Memorial hall will be open every Monday morning from 10 to 10:30 for student rallies and class meetings, applicants being preferred in the order of their application. Heads of departments and other instructors are requested to be during that half hour in attendance as regularly as possible at their usual offices or rooms, that students may conveniently meet them.
