ing the things which give the University its influence. The greatest good to the greatest number often results in the greatest good to the individual as well. Personally I do not feel that the time and money I devoted to the University are lost. I am sure I received their equivalent.

***

For University readers, it seemed to me unnecessary to justify these things, though I am aware that in some quarters their advisability, at least, is questioned. But in addressing this paper on "college spirit" to such readers I deemed it as unnecessary as I wish these arguments were. I trust and hope that we shall soon see a reawakening of spirit, and from indications I believe the time is coming when the student body as a whole will have gained some realization of what "college spirit" is—not the same as mine, perhaps, for I do not wish to prescribe it to all; but some idea of what it means to the individual and to the University, or what it may mean. Then the days of deficits, lack of patronage, and internal dissension will be past. Do not understand me as dictating this interpretation to all. Let each work out the meaning which appeals to him as most logical and beneficial to all. And do not think me pessimistic, for I believe in the University, and am hopeful for her future. Still I do not consider it pessimism or "knocking" to desire more and better spirit there. It is desirable—in my opinion, necessary—and, I am sure, will come; and if I have any part, however slight, in hastening its advent, I shall not consider my appeal wasted.

Athletic Board Meets.

The regular monthly meeting of the athletic board was held last night and the usual large amount of business was transacted. The track manager was given authority to complete the arrangements for the Sioux City trip. Fifteen men, including coach, manager and trainer, will be taken along. Nebraska will meet the University of South Dakota at the above place on Decoration day. Members of the basket ball team were voted jerseys in recognition of the good work they have done. The second baseball team was given the privilege of playing on three school days, in order to make Friday games possible. The board passed a resolution to the effect that, other things being approximately equal, it would favor, in the purchase of supplies, advertisers in the Daily Nebraskan.
