Staff Editorials.

Now that spring is here and the campus is rapidly assuming a color more in keeping with the season of the year, the warning should be published more and more to "keep off the grass." All winter long regular paths have been followed across the campus, until the grass is almost entirely worn away. The cadets, going to and from drill, are in a great measure responsible for this, but they are not alone to blame. The small plot planted last year between University hall and Soldiers' Memorial has been tramped upon until it is in a deplorable condition. We are all interested in the appearance of the campus, and we should make it an especial care to protect the grass.

Good manners are like Sunday clothes; many students wear them only once a week.

A notice appeared in yesterday's paper regarding the senior class party which is to be given April 3rd. Every senior should make it a point to be present. This is one of the few University affairs in which all can mingle freely and not feel handicapped because they may not dance. An affair of this kind is intended for all the class and for members of the class alone, and for this reason arrangements will be made whereby everyone present can enjoy himself in some way. A wider acquaintance is what is needed among members of a class in order to have successful co-operation. Every senior make plans to be at the armory Friday evening, April 3rd.

A turned-up chair is a study in character; empty two minutes, it indicates industriousness; empty half an hour, it declares out loud, "selfishness."

Now is the time to get out and help encourage the baseball men. The squad has been laboring under difficulties for so long that it will take every effort to get a team in good shape before the first games. Although the team will for the most part be made up of new material, the men are all experienced in baseball work, and with plenty of practice a speedy team will be developed. The squad is far behind in outdoor practice, and plenty of encouragement is needed to bring out the best work.

The Nebraskan's confidence in advertising is, as promised, on the increase. The directories called for last week have been restored. They had been borrowed and forgotten, and not intentionally retained. If there is anything you want, and don't see, ask for it—through Nebraskan columns.

Basket Ball Condemned.

(Michigan Daily.)

Basket ball, the great athletic sport for women, has been placed under the ban, says the New York World. A wave of protest has arisen in various woman's colleges.

The ground for disapproval are that illness and deformities result from violent playing, and that when young women who have played the game in schools where a close watch has not been kept upon the progress of the sport enter college the physical condition is such as to render them unfit to cope with the routine of college life.

A prominent educator and athlete who is opposed to basket ball said:

"Unless the game is played under strict supervision the greatest harm may come from it. It is equally as bad as football. Girls enter into the game with all the ferocity and animalism of football players. From a healthful exercise it has degenerated into a barbarous contest. If teachers can regulate and superintend athletics I am in favor of it to a certain degree, but basket ball has assumed an alarming phase of late.

"Basket ball is more injurious and rougher than football on girls. One of the brightest girls of my acquaintance is now unable to attend school as the result of injuries received in a basket ball game. The girls knock each other down push each other about, get their breath bumped out of them, lose their self-control and behave like young animals. Girls seem less able to keep within bounds than boys."

"It is positively brutal," said a prominent physician, "to allow girls to play basket ball to excess. Like all exercise, it is all right in a mild form, but the trouble lies in the fact that it is a game that can not be played in moderation. The opportunities for brutality are powerful, and girls become so energetic in the sport that they forget all the principles of health and physical law. The tearing and pulling, twisting and falling, result most seriously, and I have had case after case where a girl has been made an invalid through this immoderate sport. Basket ball is not a good game for women. It is too rough. Women are too delicately constructed to be subjected to the rough mauling and pounding in basket ball."

Convocation Notes

Program for the Week:

Wednesday—Prof. H. R. Smith:
Animal Husbandry Department.
Thursday—Senior Girls' program.
Friday—Musical program.

Yesterday's Exercises:

Dr. Mayhew, organist of the First Baptist church of the city, gave an organ recital during convocation period yesterday morning. The following program was rendered:

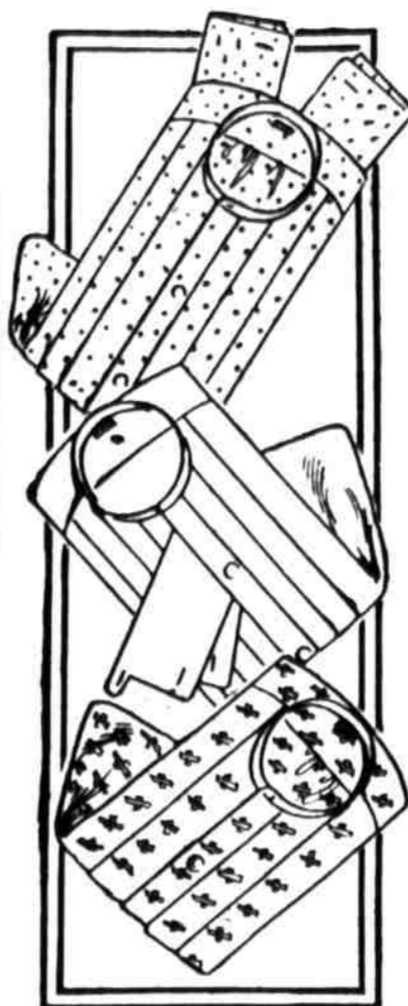

Prelude and Fugue.....Bach
Walther's Prize Song.....Wagner
In Arcady.....Nevin
