First Line Up.

Thirty men were out for baseball practice yesterday. Bender was absent. Coach Gordon chose two teams from the candidates, and nearly all the men were given trials in the places for which they are candidates. The contesting teams were made up as follows: Beltzer, Chase, Ling, Thompson, and Longaeknecker, pitchers; Whitcomb and Wilson, catchers; Moore and Wrights, first base; Townsend and Johnson, second base; Hood and Ramsey, third base; Steen and Johnson, short; Sprague, Gaddis, Roth, Shelmer, Burg, Neeley and Wilson, fielders. Some good infield work was done, and Shelmer, Gaddis and Sprague proved effectual in pulling down skyscrapers. The work of Hood, Wilson, Johnson, Wright, Gaddis, Townsend, and Cook at the bat was good. Wilson was especially strong in this respect, and showed up well behind the bat. Beltzer, Thompson, Longaeknecker, and Morse did some nice work in the box. Beltzer promises to rival Letherby, last year's famous twirler. He yesterday in two innings caused five men to drop the stick in disgust after three futile attempts to "kill it." Longaeknecker fanned four men, Ling and Morse two each, and Thompson one. Wright and Moore showed up in good form on first, as did McGeachin and Johnson on second and Ramsey and Hood on third. Gaddis was credited with the only three-bagger made. Hood made two scores, Gaddis two, Burg and Cook one each.

The south bleachers were nearly filled and considerable interest was taken by the crowd in the work of the men. After a few days the squad will be cut down to twenty-five men, who will compose the first and second teams. Men who expect to make either nine must get in their best ticks now and should report daily if possible. If nice weather continues the Cornhuskers will soon be playing good ball. As soon as the team gets in fair shape, practice games will be held with city teams. Owing to the lateness of the season, the men realize they must work the harder, and every one goes into the game with unusual vim.

Mr. Editor:

Since the basket ball game Tuesday night in which the freshmen vanquished the juniors to the tune of 25 to 24, there has been a great deal of comment made. The juniors can hardly get it out of their heads that the game, the championship and the caps are not theirs. The freshmen are keeping still and not saying much, but the juniors are looking glum and if you strike a junior basket ball man (to be fair, I should say not every one) as to the cause, you will hear many interesting things. Certainly the victims are not acting in a sportsmanlike manner. If raising a howl and trying all possible means to have the decision of the game reversed, or the game thrown out, or another game played by the same teams, for the championship, upon any small point which can be picked out, is right, proper, and sportsmanlike, then all is well. Certainly the juniors are not living up to their views as expressed in the interclass athletic constitution, of which they are the authors and prime movers. However, as there has been no word said about the fairness of the officials, and as in a game of the full and correct length of twenty-minute halves, the juniors have been fairly and squarely defeated by the small but decisive margin of one point, we think that it would be proper and gentlemanly in them to at least keep still and allow the freshmen the honor and glory of their hard earned victory without its being marred by the spoken ill-feeling of those juniors, not representing the sportsmanlike attitude of the class in general, who are not willing to concede a victory to their opponents.

We remember how, last year, these same people, after two crushing defeats by us of '05, refused to concede the championship to '03 when fairly won by them. A SOPHOMORE.

Professor Grummann will speak on Sudermann's "Joy of Living" at 5 o'clock this afternoon (March 26) in U. 110.

The students of the academy have invited Dr. Louise Pound to talk to them at the Latin club Thursday evening at Miss Talbot's, 6 Floral Park.
