Editorial Remarks

The congressional library at Washington wishes a complete file of this year's Nebraskan. We are unable to supply it with the following numbers and will be very grateful if any of our readers who may have them, and not care to keep them, will generously supply us with the same: Nos. 28, 56, 80, and 87.

A good story will bear repeating—but not to the same class.

Some one suggests that the University give a "Dandelion hour" the first of next week—an hour devoted to driving the pestiferous yellow-face from the campus. How many students would be willing to join the crowd for a few minutes and pen-knife the dandelions but by the roots? It may be a good suggestion, if acted on promptly. We pass it on to the proper authorities.

Blessed is the note-taker, for he shall be borrowed of by all his friends.

Three days yet remain for submission of songs for the $100 competition. One more has been handed in this week, making nine in all. Everyone who has talent in the song line is urged to enter the contest. It is not the prize, but it is a matter of much of so much importance who shall get concern that Nebraska get a good song. If any one has thought of competing, but neglected to do so, let him bestir himself and hand his endeavor in before Sunday.

Convocation Notes

Program for the Week:

Thursday—Mass meeting in interest of Rockefeller gift.

Yesterday's Exercises:

Mr. T. F. A. Williams gave an interesting and enlightening talk yesterday morning at convocation on the workings of the Lincoln postoffice. The routine work of the office, with its hustle, its apparent confusion, and real order, and its occasional glutting with holiday mail, was graphically described by one "who knew whereof he spoke." Mr. Williams' convocation talks are always interesting, and yesterday's was no exception.

The tickets for the Decoration day excursion to the cadet encampment at Wahoo will be put on sale today at 1 o'clock at the executive office and with all cadet officers.

THE ENGLISH CLUB will meet with Miss Ruth Bryan, at her home, Saturday evening, May 9, 1903.—Margaret E. Hauzhauens, Secretary.

Ein Schon Madchen.

Have you ever met the maiden
Who wears a wavy curl;
Who scarce has reached her womanhood,

Nor yet is just a girl?
For she is just ein schon madchen
With arts of ein fraulein;
No trace of care to mark her brow;
Her face a worshiped shrine.

She wears some dimples in her cheeks,
Quite hid with hues of rose,
And these she shows promiscuously
To those she calls her beaux.
She means to be a dainty girl,
But oft' forgets her size,
And almost any little thing
Will shock her with surprise.

She took some French, and English,
too,
But never worked a bit.
She bought a "pony," learned to ride,
And then quite oft' would sit,
Resting supinely on his back
All free from worldly care—
She told a "shot" professor once
To "flunk" her if he dare.

The maid's still seen at intervals,
And time does not efface
The cheek she wears so artfully
With nature's truest grace.
For she is just ein schon Madchen,
And leads a happy pace,
For where she cannot work some one
She simply works her face.

BOB ADDISON.

The Women's University Club of the City of New York was established in 1901 for the social welfare of college-bred women. A club house at 13 East 24 street was opened in November, 1901. It contains attractive bed rooms, assembly-rooms and dining-room. The facilities of the restaurant have proved to be particularly convenient for club members. The assembly-rooms are rented for the use of college or other social organizations. During the past two years entertainments of a literary or musical character have been given at the club house and have been the means of pleasant social intercourse for the many college women of New York. The present membership of the club is about six hundred. The annual dues of resident members is $10.00, of non-resident members, $5.00. The initiation fee is $10.00. In applying for membership in the club the candidate's name is proposed and seconded by club members in letters stating the candidate's qualifications for membership, to the chairman of the committee on admissions.

The Tale of Johnnie's Plum.

Johnnie had a Sugar Plum,
Johnnie had a sugar plum
That from the store was gotten
And 'neath its red and crimson coat
'Twas most infernal rotten.

He took the plum to school with him
To win some approbation,
And during lectures showed the fruit
With pride and exultation.

But teacher spied the little lad
With optics quite extended,
And crosses her knee his puny form
Was very quickly bended.

John's conscience strove within him then
To foil the heartless creature,
He gave the plum, unselfishly,
To his undaunted teacher.
