University Calendar.

Tuesday, May 12, 6:30 p. m.—Y. W. C. A. hare and hounds chase.

Bruce Benedict spent Sunday at his home in Lincoln.

E. H. Clark and H. G. Shedd made a trip to Omaha yesterday.

Miss Utle McKay is confined to her room with a siege of mumps.

Miss Edith Higgins enjoyed a visit from her sister Saturday and Sunday.

The mother of Miss Mary Stearns, of Omaha, is spending a few days with her.

There will be a special meeting of the athletic board in Dr. Clapp's office today at 10 o'clock.

The dairy husbandry class at the state farm will hold its first stock judging meeting Saturday.

Fred C. Williams, '00, superintendent of the schools at Seward, spent Friday and Saturday in the city.

Mrs. Winspear, of Omaha, is visiting in the city this week with her niece, Miss Emma Schreiber.

Chas. Ray, principal of the York school, has been visiting with University friends for the past few days.

Miss Laura Buchanan, of Hastings, is spending a few days with Miss Besse Brown and other former University classmates and friends.

The physical education department started taking measurements yesterday of all men taking gymnasium work.

Dr. Clapp will go to Fairbury Friday to referee at an athletic meet at that place of the various high schools in that section of the country.

Miss May Persinger, of Central City, has been visiting since Saturday evening with her brother, Mr. C. E. Persinger, of the American history department.

Professor Bessey received a collection of fungi from Sweden a few days ago. It contains only the rarer species and is one of the most expensive sets now on the market.

Joseph Vavra, who has been doing special work in chemistry at the state farm, left Sunday for Longmont, Colo., where he has secured a situation with a construction company.

The botanical department received a package of plants from Vancouver Island on Monday. They contain some of the rarer forms of the seaweeds of that part of the Pacific ocean.

Albert Shear, who attended the University for several years, is at present located at East Angeles, Cal., being in the employ of the Union Consolidating and Refining company of that place.

Howard E. Harry, who has been doing graduate work since the mid-winter commencement, has been elected to teach in the Albion high school the coming year.

Vivian Strickland, who formerly attended the University, visited in the city over Sunday with friends. He is at present assistant principal in the Geneva high school.

Miss Louise Van Camp, '00, an instructor in the Beatrice high school, was in the city Friday, viewing the fete day exercises and visiting with old University friends.

The sympathy of her University friends is with Miss Emma Spafford, whose half-brother, Louis Critchfield, died the latter part of last week after a long and protracted illness with the measles.

Guy Ensign, who attended the University last semester, died at his home in this city Sunday afternoon. Miss Alice Ensign, of this year's senior class, is a sister of the deceased. The Nebraskan joins Miss Ensign's many friends in expressions of heartfelt sympathy.

W. F. Matthews, who has been doing special work in chemistry, left for Fort Collins, Colo., Friday, having accepted a position with a construction company whose headquarters are at that place.

Invitations have been received by members of the faculty to attend the fourth annual dinner of the Nebraska University Club of Chicago, to be given May 30th at the Victoria hotel in Chicago. Bion J. Arnold, E. E. '97, is to be the speaker of the day.

Alfred Elliott, '00, is visiting this week with his brother, N. J. Elliott. Since graduating, Mr. Elliott has been pursuing theological studies, having attended the school of theology at Princeton last year, and that of the University of Chicago this year.

The final examination of John Lewis Sheldon, '99 and '91, for the degree of doctor of philosophy, will take place some time this week, the exact time and place to be announced later. Mr. Sheldon's thesis on plant pathological studies is now in the chancellor's office, where it may be inspected by members of the graduate faculty.

The last meeting of the year of the Nebraska Schoolmasters' club will be held Friday evening at the Lincoln hotel. Professor Bessey is the president for the current year. The paper for the evening will be presented by Dr. Fordyce, '96 and '98, and the discussion will be opened by W. L. Stephens, '89. At this meeting the members bring their wives as guests.

The English club met, Saturday night, at the home of Miss Ruth Bryan and enjoyed a very pleasant evening. After the program, which consisted of stories by Miss Glover and Mr. Buckner, the company was served to refreshments and then hurried away to catch the last car home. A half hour's waiting in the moonlight for the late car was taken in good spirit after the royal entertainment of the evening.

The Nebraskan has just received the tenth annual catalog of the Nebraska Business and Shorthand College, at Omaha. This college has grown, under the direction of Professor A. C. Ong, to be one of the leading institutions of its kind, not only in Nebraska, but in the west. Professor Ong is well known throughout the state as an educator and a man of extraordinary ability and untiring energy. The catalog is profusely illustrated with half-tones of the college. Among the faculty we notice the name of V. B. Hogan, law '01.
