Editorial Remarks

Our team is putting on its finishing touches for the game at Denver Saturday. Little speculation has been ventured concerning this game, though a feeling of assurance exists that Nebraska will have no great task in taking their measure. The team is now strong and in good condition for the trip, the games played thus far having furnished some excellent practice and brought out the potential powers of the players. The men, however, will be obliged to take as good care of themselves as possible on this trip, as it is absolutely necessary that they meet the Haskell Indians with strength unimpaired. This will be the first trip of the year, but little concern is felt over the outcome of the game.

It is said that sixteen more votes were cast at Monday's election than there were class members present. If such is the case there is need of an investigation. Such crookedness as is alleged should not be tolerated in this University, where good influences only are supposed to exist and as far as we know do exist. Whatever contamination there is in class affairs is brought in from the outside and enabled to spread through the unscrupulousness of a few. Few of the students take the trouble to examine deeply into the business of the elections, and while they sit still in their passiveness, counterforces are hard at work to achieve some purpose which they are able to carry out simply because their mind is concentrated in it and they are determined to see it through. Thus the rest of the members of the class often don't realize that they are imposed upon, and they themselves are to blame for it.

If those Juniors who have rebelled against the methods employed at Monday's election, feel that they have any grounds for action it is their duty to go ahead and do whatever the occasion requires. The majority should in no wise allow the minority to dictate to them and if they are sure that the ballot box was stuffed, then they should calmly and deliberately take measures to secure themselves justice.

We do not believe that all the members of the winning side would openly countenance the stuffing of the ballot box, and we do not see why anyone can have any objection to this matter being investigated thoroughly, if he is sure that it will stand investigation. We make no charges, but if it transpires that there are sufficient grounds for an investigation we urge that it be pushed.

The College Settlement.

The student body of the University of Nebraska should not be unmindful of the good work that is being done in their midst. We refer to the College Settlement work that is carried on from year to year by the co-operation of liberal-minded members of the faculty and the student body. That a large house could be furnished and maintained by the students of our University for such a laudable purpose as our settlement house fulfills, is a matter of pride and a credit to our institution. Each year a large amount of money must be raised and the settlement board trusts entirely to the liberality of University people and of the city.

The College Settlement has enjoyed a steady growth, although at the beginning those in charge were badly hampered by lack of means. However, to their appeals a liberal response was made, and the years that have intervened have witnessed progress of a most substantial character. The settlement now has a house of its own and has large possibilities before it. The interest taken by students who have given freely of their time and labor has made possible the carrying on of the work, as they have foregone pastimes and pleasures in order to take charge of and instruct those to whom this opportunity for study is their only one.

And now a new year is at hand, and the student body will be called upon to lend their assistance. We should remember that those raising funds are not seeking the money for their own benefit, but for the benefit of those whose mental and moral natures will thus be bettered. All who are appealed to should not hesitate to contribute what they can. The money goes for a good purpose and not better investment could be made.

Gymnasium classes will all commence floor work Monday.

The last lecture in physical culture will be given Friday.

Miss Julia Bednar has been off the sick list and is slowly recovering.

Mr. John Nicholson, of Springfield, Neb., visited University friends Monday.

The observatory was open to visitors from 8 to 10 p. m. on Monday. The people that came got a good view of Saturn.

Prof. Lyons, from the University state farm, was a caller at the chemical laboratory Monday.

The stereopticon lantern used in geology 1 is being placed in readiness for use. As soon as it is ready the class will be transferred to U. 107.

When the new artificial roof of the boilerhouse is completed there will be room for a large amount of coal under a water-proof roof.

H. Crouch, who recently resigned his position as assayer in the Flat Iron mine in South Dakota, to return to the University, is specializing in chemistry and metallurgy.

C. A. Fisher, who was formerly in the geological department, but who is now working on the United States geological survey, visited the geology department yesterday.

F. M. Richards, '03, was on the campus yesterday. Mr. Richards spent the summer in the east, where he visited Niagara Falls, New York City, Providence and other places of interest.

The ornithology course under Professor Bruner, has every indication of being an especially interesting one. Those taking the course will attend the local bird club, which meets every two weeks.

The work of tearing out the old boiler in the boilerroom is progressing quite rapidly and workmen are now engaged in removing the brick wall of the furnace. Owing to a delay, however, the materials for the new Heine boiler have not yet been received.

Sigma Alphas Initiate.

A free entertainment was held on the campus yesterday morning by Messrs. Putnam, '07, of Omaha, Nye, '07, Kearney, and other accomplished artists, under the auspices of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Mr. Putnam was magnificently attired in white duck trousers, a bath robe and an elegant sash of purple and gold—the fraternity colors. An alarm clock, guaranteed never to stop, served effectually to draw attention while Mr. Putnam industriously swept the walks of the campus.

Mr. Nye came on the campus at 10 o'clock, and favored the crowd with a "well rendered solo" on the trombone from the large rock just west of the library. Mr. Nye's attire consisted of a skull cap, a bath robe and pajamas of the latest and most approved style. He also had an alarm clock.

The other gentlemen were busily engaged in the various mud puddles on R street. Several were fishing and one practicing on a minute snare drum.

After the entertainment had concluded refreshments were served in the Sigma Alpha house.

Employment.

The employment bureau of the Y. M. C. A. announces that it still has several places where student help is desired. Men desiring to earn their board or room rent, or both, are requested to call at the association rooms and arrange for same. Those who wish to take care of odd jobs from time to time, are also requested to call.

Convocation.

Prof. Louise Pound will speak on "The Murdering of the King's English" this morning.

Chancellor Andrews will speak on "The advantages of attending chapel."

An attempt is being made to start a class in metallurgy, but as there are only a few who wish to take it it is doubtful whether the course can be offered.

A regular prayer meeting for men, which has been held on Thursday evening from 7 to 7:30, will be held from now on, on Wednesday evening at the same hour. This meeting lasts for a brief half hour, beginning at 7 o'clock sharp, and closing promptly at 7:30. More and more men are coming to appreciate this feature of college life. All men are cordially invited to be present.
