Editorial Remarks

One good thing that is especially noticeable this year is the willingness displayed by our whole student body to support University enterprises.

The musical programs rendered in chapel Fridays are increasing constantly in popularity. No matter how remiss students are through the week in attending chapel, it is noticeable how they all turn out on Friday.

The tidings from Denver are awaited anxiously, and there seems to be nothing to indicate that they will not be welcome ones. Nebraska is there ready for the combat with its contingent of supporters, and the game this afternoon will undoubtedly be a hard fought one.

The Denver people are wise in turning out when Nebraska plays. They can appreciate a great attraction, and one will surely be furnished.

More About Rhodes Scholarship.

More About the Rhodes Scholarship. As the time draws near for the selection of candidates for the Oxford scholarships, provided for in the will of Cecil Rhodes, the interest of some of our students is naturally aroused.

to the classics will find themselves in the most advantageous position for passing the examination. The requirements in Latin and Greek are heavy, and even those who enter will have to put in considerable work in studying up forgotten parts before they will be able to do justice to their own abilities.

The first election of scholars in the United States will be made between February and May, 1904. Papers covering the range of study will be prepared by examiners appointed by the trustees, and will be sent to each state center, where at a date publicly announced the examination will be under proper supervision, and the papers returned to the examiners.

It has been decided that all scholars shall have reached at least the end of their sophomore or second year work at some recognized degree-granting university or college of the United States. Scholars must be unmarried, must be citizens of the United States, and must be between nineteen and twenty-five years of age.

It is apparent that a large amount of preparation will be required, especially for any students who intend trying for the prize. Yet it cannot be denied that the prize is worth striving for, and ambitious young student who tries and succeeds will have accomplished an achievement of which he may justly feel proud.

Law Course for Engineers.

To comply with the request of the Engineering society Dr. Pound will give a course, "The Law of Engineering," to engineering students. The class this year is open to Seniors only, this being their last chance to take advantage of this very important training.

Another new feature in the school is a seminar in practice and office economy, conducted by Dr. Pound. There are three divisions and they will meet as follows: Mondays, 7:30 p. m., Saturdays at 10 and 11 a. m. The work will be conducted in Dr. Pound's office in the Burr block.

The class in geology I has been divided temporarily. One division attends lectures while the other works in the laboratory. The chapel is being fitted up as rapidly as possible in order to accommodate the whole class.
