

Late Society News

One of the most enjoyable University social functions of the season took place at the University School of Music, Saturday night. The young ladies who reside at the Conservatory gave a Hallowe'en party. Some twenty-five couples were present. Professor and Mrs. Kimball and Miss Barbour chaperoned the party.

Hallowe'en was emphasized with appropriate decorations and entertainment. Jack o' lanterns, together with colored lights furnished fitting illuminations. Fire places were lit up in keeping with the occasion. The spacious parlors, made cosy with rugs, cushions, and sofas, were handsomely decorated. Entrance ways were adorned in a novel manner and college pennants and colors were much in evidence on the walls.

The guests began to arrive about 8 and by 8:30 a merry throng of young folks had assembled. After a half hour's social chat, spent in getting acquainted, the pleasure makers withdrew to the dancing room. Miss Grace Young, who furnished excellent music for the evening, struck up a waltz and dancing, the chief feature of the evening's entertainment, was on. Dainty liquid refreshments were served during the evening by little Miss Genevieve Podrea. Those who did not trip the light fantastic amused themselves at cards and other games.

After twelve numbers, with several encores, the party returned to the darkened parlors for the rest of the evening. Some gathered around the glowing fire-places and toasted marshmallows. Others entertained with weird ghost stories.

At a late hour delicious refreshments were served and just before Sunday morn the party broke up. All present speak very highly of the hospitality of their hostesses and proclaim the evening's enjoyment a most delightful one.

These directly in charge of affairs were the reception committee, Miss Henrich; decorating, Edna Walt; dancing, Miss Wenger, and refreshment, Miss Snyder. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Kimball; Misses Richards, Low and Edna Watt, Snyder, Wenger, Du Brava, Butler, Hendrich, Johnson, Williams, Hoberg, Palmquist, Barbour, Dopson, McDaniel, Lansing, Sullivan, Burns, Willard, Hinman, Brigham, Wengrad, Hoker, Young, Elissman; Messrs. Leech, Horn, White, Mathew, Myers, Pollock, Ward, Holms, Woods, Priest, Le Mar, Vance, Kimball, jr., Arnold.

Hallowe'en with its feeling of good cheer and good fellowship gave an impetus to social doings among University people last week. It is the most informal hale-fellow-well-met season of the year, and society took advantage of this fact to come down just a little from its usual more formal nature and thoroughly enjoy itself.

At all the Saturday evening parties good, old-fashioned fun was the order of the event. Apples, cookies, cider and in some instances pumpkin pie added to the good time, and the weird half-light of the grinning Jack-o'-lanterns offered a fitting background for the ghost stories, fortune telling and awful experiences of Hallowe'en.

Pi Beta Phi gave a Hallowe'en party at the chapter house Saturday evening. The house was lighted with Jack o' Lanterns and appropriately decorated with strings of popcorn, rosy apples and corn stalks. A ghostly apparition read the future of the guests. A customary Hallowe'en luncheon was served during the evening. The evening was spent largely in dancing.

Prof. C. E. Persinger entertained the Central City students at a Hallowe'en party at his home, 1920 F street. Characteristic Hallowe'en games and amusements were indulged in and in spite of the supernatural air that pervaded everything during the early part of the evening the occasion was a pleasant one for all.

The Unions had a most successful Hallowe'en party, Friday night. The hall was decorated with Jack-o'-lanterns, pumpkins and autumn leaves. The guests were received by shades of their departed ancestors and spent a merry evening eating apples and toasting marsh mallows.

Miss Mabel Christie was a Kappa visitor in Omaha over Sunday.

The Medical society was entertained at the home of Dr. Ward Friday evening.

Charles Stuart entertained the Pi Phi's Thursday with a phonograph concert.

Guy Cooper, of Humboldt, visited his Alpha Theta Chi brothers Saturday and Sunday.

The girls of Chi Omega gave a fancy dress party at the chapter house Saturday evening.

Chi Omega received Friday evening for Miss Martha Woods, who has just returned from California.

Saturday evening Delta Delta Delta will give their third reception to members of the University faculty.

Norman Hackett of the "Alexander the Great" company, was entertained at the Episcopal club house yesterday morning.

The girls of Pi Beta Phi entertained the members of Alpha Omicron Pi on Thursday evening of last week at a chafing dish party.

The mission study classes, their teachers and committees will have a social at the home of Prof. Hodgman, next Saturday evening.

Mason Wheeler gave a dinner Saturday evening to his Delta Tau Delta brothers. Places were marked by plate candles bearing the various nick names of the boys.

Misses Margaret Porter and Elsie Stevenson held a quaint birthday celebration Friday evening in Miss Porter's rooms on R street. Cards and refreshments were the order of the evening.

Norman Hackett of the "Alexander the Great" company, and Rev. B. J. Fitz and Rev. Frederick Graves, of Ord, were entertained by Dr. Clapp at dinner yesterday evening. All four of these gentlemen are members of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity.

The alumnae chapter of Delta Gamma entertained the active chapter Saturday evening at the home of Miss Deeweese. The evening's fun was heightened by the costumes of the active chapter, which consisted of representations of dolls in the dress of various nations.

Second Edition of Hand Book

The demand for the year's Y. M. C. A. hand-book has been so great that a second large edition has been necessitated. The book has been unusually successful this year and seems to meet the needs of the students admirably. Besides containing very valuable information for University students, a large portion of the book is set apart for memorandums. They may be had by registering for them at the association rooms.
