Editorial Remarks

Nebraska has effectively disposed of one of what were considered her two most dangerous foes, the result of the game being a distinct surprise to many who had anticipated a much harder fought contest. The fast, machine-like play of Nebraska against her strong opponents was simply marvelous, each man entering in at the right moment and performing some function that contributed toward wiping out the distance from the Knox goal. Anyone who saw Saturday's game could not doubt but that Nebraska has one of the very strongest teams in the west.

This game firmly established our supremacy over Knox, as our team showed superiority in every point of comparison. And this is not saying that Knox did not play a strong, heady game, for at times they did some brilliant work, and their playing was consistent throughout. But they met a team that was stronger, faster and better trained and could not stand before it.

And now, looking ahead to Thanksgiving. No one doubts but that the game with Illinois will be a hard one, and that we will have to work to win. The completeness of our victory over Knox gives us confidence in the ability of our team to make a strong showing against Illinois, so far as to even accomplish her defeat. The teams of the Big Nine are not, as a rule, showing up so strongly this year, Michigan and Minnesota alone seeming to have teams up to last season's standard. And then taking into consideration the showing that our team has made against Iowa and Knox, which are accustomed to meet the strongest aggregations in the midwest, and the fact that it stands unbeaten, we have well-founded reasons for believing that Illinois will have her hands full in beating Nebraska.

There are but three games left now, and it is the due of the men on the team to show them that our interest is not decreasing with the waning of the season. Of course the game with Illinois is the most important, and in helping to make this event a fitting culmination of a brilliant record, each student should lend his services toward making the crowd the largest that ever witnessed a game on our athletic field. We can do it if we will. Each student can use his influence to some good advantage, either by trying to interest others or by writing to the home paper and enlisting its services in reaching people within its sphere of influence. This game is one of surpassing importance and it will be a struggle that will partake of the spectacular. There is no reason then why we should be content with merely a large crowd when the attraction is so great. What we want is the largest crowd that ever witnessed a football game here, and if the merit of our team is recognized and it is given its just desert we need have no fear of the result.

The excursion to Kansas is the all-absorbing topic now, and those expecting to go should not delay in making their intentions known. It is desirable that our team should have a large contingent of supporters to root in its behalf. Our men will encounter some strong rooting at Kansas, and in the midst of the demonstrations exhorting their opponents to success the old Uni-yell, coming out full and strong, will give them new encouragement and energy to bend to their task and establish their supremacy over Kansas in a decided manner. The right kind of support always helps, and it is a welcome piece of news to hear—at both the University people and the citizens of Lincoln have responded to such a liberal extent as to permit the band to accompany the team. The presence of the band will make our contingent of rooters strictly in evidence and they will be able to offset some of the disadvantages under which our team may be compelled to labor.

The faculty are going in with renewed effort to make their Carnival a success. Though greatly disappointed over the postponement of this vastly important affair, they are going to try it again, and as the time draws nigh they are rapidly recovering their former enthusiasm. The training that they have had will not be lost, and an opportunity will be allowed for additional work in getting themselves into a condition that was even more fit than before. Interest among University people has revived and the curiosity over the event that was formerly in evidence has returned. The faculty has given liberally of their time, and it is a welcome piece of news to know that they will have an opportunity to display their athletic prowess and help the College Settlement.

touchdown and throughout the entire half played like a veteran and a demon. His playing was steady and at times spectacular and drew frequent applause from the crowd. He made two of the three touchdowns made in this half.

The final score of the game was 33 to 5, and speaks eloquently but silently for the playing of Nebraska.

The excursion to Kansas is an assured affair. The team will leave between 10 and 11 o'clock Friday night and returning will leave Kansas City about 11:30 Saturday night. The round trip rate will be $3.00.

The excursion is over the Union Pacific.

The team was put through a stiff practice last night. They lined up against the Scrubs and did some splendid work.

Captain Bender was not out in football clothes, being somewhat used up by Saturday's game. He will be out tomorrow.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

A large audience of over 700 men, a good proportion of whom were from the University, listened to Rev. M. C. B. Mason's lecture on "Unsolved Questions" at the Oliver theatre Sunday afternoon. The lecture was a decided success in every respect. Mrs. H. Finley Helms furnished music.
