WILL PLAY GAME

Cornhuskers Will Have Chance to Down the Jayhawkers

It is an assured fact that the game with Kansas will be played. Every one who has an idea to the contrary wants to lose it speedily and lend his assistance to help disabusing the minds of others who hold wrong opinions.

Also it was decided yesterday that Bender and Wilson are to play. The protests of Kansas will not affect this decision in any way. Both of the men were examined and no grounds for the charges of professionalism could be found.

After all that has been said by the prominent men of the University against professionalism in any form, it would be hardly consistent that it should knowingly be tolerated by them. After all that has been said upon it this time it is not possible that they are ignorant of the charge.

It is with great pleasure that we note the fact that a goodly number of the faculty are going to Kansas.

The interest that they have manifested in athletics this fall has been very gratifying and has done much for the good of the cause.

Is it possible that some of the students might profit by their example? It is very possible.

Hard stiff work was the key note of the practice last night. The men go into it like they intend tearing up the very ground from under the Kansas team. The team was first put through signal practice and then lined up against the Scrubs.

Both practices were up to the best of standards and were very encouraging.

Even after all that was said after the Iowa game frequent comments are heard on the campus regarding the score made by Knox. The glorious victory of the team seems to be completely overshadowed by the fact that Knox scored. Oh, ye unfeeling and ungrateful generation. How long will ye abuse our patience? Vainly does the team perform valiant deeds. In your eyes they count for naught.

Come on fellows—brace up! Forget that the team was scored on if it rankles in your mind. Remember only that they have won every battle and will win others, and need your every effort to their support.

In a Missouri paper, one published by the students of the University, we see an article which said that Nebraska won from Iowa not on her merits but by the aid of good fortune that the Iowa team really outplayed us.

With such comments from without it behooves us to stand together on every point and that there be no dissenting voice among us. "A house divided against itself can not stand."

Let us all pull together and with a will which will win for us the plaudits of even our bitterest foes.

Don't forget the Faculty Carnival Friday afternoon. There is to be a half holiday and every one who makes use of it by attending the Carnival, we, of our own free will, vouch that you will not regret it.

Agricultural School Registration.

At the close of yesterday's registration at the state farm eighty-four students had registered. This is a most gratifying increase over last year's registration, exceeding it by 75 per cent. Prospects are very favorable for the most successful year the department of agriculture has ever experienced.

ANXIOUS FOR THE DAY.

Faculty Wait Patiently for Friday and Continue Practice

A spirit of restless activity prevails among the faculty, and the calendars that hang in the class rooms are degenerating into a hopelessly decrepit condition by reason of the vigorous reference so often made to them. The margins of the leaves have curled into all sorts of fantastic shapes under the burning, eager gaze of the faculty members, in whose sight a day is but a thousand years. The faculty are anxious—eager for Friday to come. They long for the occasion when they will be free to exercise their turbulent spirits in manly sports and work out old grievances among themselves.

The cow pastures and back streets in various parts of Lincoln present scenes of startling activity, in the evening when the sun is low and the faculty have laid aside all duties for the day. The wheelbarrows that were stowed away in sheds with tears of regret are upon occasions set violently in motion, being propelled by enormous muscular power and describing a course remarkable for its gracefully erratic windings. Some of them prolong their activities far into the night, and the repose of many a good burgher has been disturbed by their heavy rumble as they whirl over the cobble stones and the insistent patter of their feet as they rush through wind and darkness, in their eagerness to develop strength and expertness in the noble art of wheelbarrow racing.

Much speculation has been aroused over the hammer-throw, but all concern has been set at ease by the issuing of an official bulletin signed by Professor Caldwell and Dr. Ross that it will certainly take place. In regard to betting on this event, Professor Caldwell has expressed his views very emphatically. He feels that it is his moral duty to rule out betting, permitting it under no circumstances unless all bets are made in his favor. Dr. Ross thinks that this is a good assurance that there will be no betting.

The wheelbarrow race will be a tie between Professor Dann and Dr. Bolton. We can state this with absolute certainty because we have received a private tip from each of these gentlemen that he himself will win. So under the circumstances no other result than a tie will be possible. Professor Hodgman prefers to have the course run along the east side of the field and then turning proceed west toward the grandstand. He thinks that such a course will suit him perfectly, as he has discovered the shortest distance between two points, while the others, he hopes, will have to investigate the spaces intervening between three. But as the others assert that they will stand no cutting across, he may have to figure out a new design.

Dr. Condra and George Shedd are expected to have their teams into condition again. Their men have all returned to the training diet of oatmeal water and breakfast food, and will enter the battle Friday with one absorbing idea, this being to jar loose from each of their opponents all claim to earthly existence.

All details of the program offered will be made known to our readers before the meet, and a list of the events will be given, as well as the line-up of the football and baseball teams.

Tried for Duplicating Tickets.

The duplication of tickets to Saturday's game has been investigated, and the guilty party was found to be Isaac Polwosky, who is in the employ of the Ivy Press. About $20 worth of these tickets were circulated and gave rise to confusion over the reserved seats. An investigation being instituted, there was little difficulty in fixing the guilt of the crime. Polwosky being a printer in the establishment, had little difficulty in printing extra tickets for his own use as the forms were accessible to him.

He was taken into custody Monday evening and Dean Pound aided in the prosecution at his trial before Police Judge Cosgrave yesterday. He admitted to Judge Pound that he had printed three tickets for his own use, and offered to compromise matters, thus incriminating himself. An investigation of his past career brings to light the fact that he has a record behind him, being at once time in the reform school and having been implicated in a number of offenses. He asked for a continuance of thirty days, but Judge Cosgrave refused to grant it.

Dr. Ross has been placed on the program of the joint meeting of the American Economic association to be held in New Orleans next month. He will discuss "The Relation of Sociology to History." Dr. Ross may not be able to attend the convention on account of a lack of time.

PLANS ARE READY

Plans of New Physics Building Ready for Bidders.

The plans for the new Physics building have been completed and are now in the hands of the drawing architect, and if all goes well it is hoped to submit the plans to bidders by January 1. The plans contemplate a building of three floors. It is to be located west of the main hall and will be "L" shaped to accommodate the athletic field. The south frontage will be parallel with the Armory to maintain the architectural lines, and the east front on a line with the north wing of the Library.

The west extension is planned to accommodate itself with the extent of the appropriation. The main entrance will be on the east side. Greek architecture will be employed and the present plan is to use gray brick and terracotta work, very similar to that of the city library. The architects, Fisher & Lowrie, of Omaha, have given assurance that architecturally it will be the finest building in this part of the country.

The construction is to be as simple as is consistent with the purpose of such a building. Dispensing with the basement and placing the first floor directly upon the ground will reduce the amount of material to be employed, and at the same time allow all work involving stability to be performed on the first floor. The second floor will contain two large experimental lecture rooms, one of which will be constructed on the amphitheatre plan and extend through two floors, seating about 300 people. The total flooring will be between twenty-five and thirty-five thousand feet.

The plan has been approved by the regents and if the bids will make the present plans possible, the departments of experimental psychology, astronomy and government meteorology will be quartered in this building. The appropriation is $75,000, and bids must not exceed this amount, otherwise the plans will have to be altered. It is possible that the construction will commence early in spring, but nothing will be certain until the contract has been let.

It is certainly to be hoped that the building will not be delayed any longer, as its need is very pressing. The physics department has been in cramped quarters and working under great difficulties for a long time, and the same can well be said about the other departments above mentioned.

Stage Committee Appointed.

The Dramatic club has appointed its stage committee, of which the following are members: Mr. Lightner, J. B. Chessington, Edwin Meyers, Eva Cooper, Marry Melick and Benjamin Gibson. The play committee consists of Frank Beers, Miss Gould, Miss Kind, Helen Woodsmall and Mabel Stephens. The club will hold an important meeting at chapel time next Monday in U. 106. Every student of the elocution department is eligible to membership in the Dramatic club and a cordial invitation is extended to all to be present at the meeting next Monday.
