A GRAND SUCCESS

Sixteenth Decisive Battle of the World Fought Out By Faculty.

The much-talked-of, postponed Faculty Carnival is a thing of the past.

No more will the professors be seen on the athletic field twirling the sphere or rushing the oval. Their hopes were either realized or trampled in the dust yesterday afternoon.

The day was a good one for the participants, but just a little sharp for the spectators. Still a good crowd was in attendance and from the noise that was made one might have thought that the game with Illinois was in progress.

The band marched into the grounds at 2:30 with a crowd at its heels and straightway the air was filled with fragments of songs and spasmodic calls and cheers.

A number of the professors were on the grounds attired in whatever costume their entry required.

Every few minutes a head would be suddenly thrust in at the gate and peer cautiously about to see if the coast was clear, then a queerly garbed body would steal softly into the grounds and make its way apologetically across the field amid the cheers and good humored calls from the grandstand.

At the south end of the bleachers Dr. Ross had a pair of scales and offered to guess any one's weight within ten pounds for a dime or money refunded.

Young ladies with baskets on their arms filled with pop corn, peanuts and candy went about among the spectators selling their wares.

At about five minutes of three Dr. Clapp, Mr. Hanna and Mr. Lane opened the Carnival with work on the horizontal and parallel bars. Their apparatus was placed in front of the grandstand, half-way down the field, which gave everyone a good opportunity to see the entire performance.

The exhibition lasted about twenty minutes and was excellent, calling forth repeatedly hearty applause.

Then there was an uproar at the gate, a clatter of many feet upon the stone walk and headed by Professor Caldwell ten men clad in overalls and jumpers ran onto the field.

This strangely clad group of men was one of the great baseball teams which were to contend for the crown of olive leaves. Their opponents were awaiting them clad in the usual garb of players of the game.

After a short warming up the gong sounded for action.

The "Overalls" had their outs and took their places, the fielders running jauntily to their positions carrying bushel baskets. Persinger was in the box and Melick caught him.

The "Overalls" shut the Originals out the first time up.

Then came the "Overalls" to bat. Valiently did they wield the stick and before the necessary three men had died Professor Caldwell and Professor Smith had scratched down three bags and passed the rubber, making two scores.

The Originals took up the war club with blood in their eyes and by timely hits brought one man in, Lane making the score.

In the next inning, which was the last, neither side scored.

Mr. Votah in the box, supported by Dr. Condra, did some good work and the fielding on both sides was excellent.

The "Overalls" won by a score of 2 to 1, which shows that the players in the two nines had not forgotten what they used to do. Dr. Clemens umpired the game and Prof. Barber refereed.

Prof. Taylor next entertained the audience with his trained horses, and it was a very clever and pleasing performance. He had two horses, which he exhibited turn about, and the manner in which they behaved and went through their various tricks showed careful training. Prof. Taylor is to be complimented.

Throughout the afternoon occasional calls, becoming more frequent as time went by, were made for the football game.

Directly after Professor Taylor's event the two teams appeared. One under the leadership of Dr. Condra and the other under Prof. Shedd.

Each team took a short signal practice and then the whistle blew and they lined up.

Mr. Shedd kicked off for his team, sending the ball down to his opponents' 10-yard line.

Dr. Condra took it in and started to tear up the ground when suddenly arrested in his erratic career by Prof. Moore. Then came a series of line plunger which would have made the first team turn green with envy. Dr. Clapp and Dr. Condra did most of the carrying of the ball, but after a few gains the Sheddites steadied down and held their opponents for downs. The ball went over to Mr. Shedd's team on their opponents' 22-yard line. A touchdown looked inevitable, but Dr. Condra's husky followers braced up and were able to hold. Mr. Shedd tried for a drop-kick, but was hurried so that it failed. Dr. Condra fell on the ball behind his own goal line. The ball was brought to the 25-yard line and kicked off. Prof. Moore caught the punt and ran it back twenty yards.

From then on the ball see-sawed back and forth, mostly in the territory of Mr. Shedd's team. Frequent punts were exchanged between Mr. Shedd and Dr. Condra in which the honors were about even.

Finally near the close of the half a punt from Dr. Condra was fumbled and one of the Condraites fell on the ball on the Shedd 15-yard line and by steady line plunges advanced the ball to the 3-yard line when time was called for the first half.

One of the features of the game was the "Doctor" Chase, who had his kit of tools consisting of a long rusty saw and a pair of bellows. His services were often needed.

During the time between the halves one of the best features on the program was introduced. This was the hammer-throw between Professors Ross and Caldwell.

Professor Caldwell was dressed in short trousers and as he marched down the field with Professor Ross the contrast was well, it simply was.

The crowd went into convulsions from thence to spasms and then stopped for the lack of anything else into which they might go.

Professor Ross threw first, the 12-pound hammer, and made a good throw and the friends of Professor Caldwell were beginning to fear for the outcome. But he was equal to it—he had a set of hammers of his own, and he picked up the 12-pound one and twirling around his head as if it were a feather he threw it almost off the field.

Professor Ross then tried hard on the 18-pound hammer, but the result was the same.

Finally they came to the heavy weight. Professor Ross threw an 80-pound hammer and Professor Caldwell had a 200-pound one brought onto the field. Even in this throw Prof. Caldwell completely distanced his tall opponent and this closed the contest.

The second half of the football game was then called.

The two teams came onto the field apparently as fresh as when they began.

From the kick-off until the last whistle blew the play was fast and furious. Professor Bolton had to be carried from one down to another in a wheelbarrow, but being a true Spartan he could not desert his cause, so stuck to it to the bitter end.

No score was made in this half, so the championship remains undecided.

The features of this half were the two long runs, one by Dr. Pound, and another by Mr. Lane, both men crossing the goal line, but the touchdowns not being allowed on account of holding in the line.

Dr. Pound made the run for Mr. Shedd's team and Mr. Lane for Dr. Condra's.

The two captains became furious (?) when these touchdowns were not allowed and it was only by the timely interference of Mr. Ringer, the umpire, that they were kept apart. It is difficult to imagine what might have happened had they come together, but we fear that they might have been discussing politics yet.

The game closed with the ball in the possession of Mr. Shedd's team in the center of the field.

Immediately after the game the sack race was called.

There were three entries, Dr. Bolton, Prof. Emerson and Prof. Engberg.

These gentlemen did not keep the people waiting long, but got down to business quickly. The race was contested closely, but Professor Emerson won out in the end by quite a distance.

The closing race was the one with wheelbarrows. There were five entries, Professors Hodgman, Sweezy, Dann, Chatburn, and Dr. Bolton.

These men became so mixed as to their courses and interfered so much with each other that the race had to be declared off.

This closed the carnival.

In every respect it was one of the most unique events that has even been held on the University grounds, and will be long remembered most pleasantly by all who witnessed it.

The Y. W. C. A. will hold its county fair in the Armory and chapel a week from tonight. Elaborate arrangements are being made for this event and the list of attractions includes a side show in addition to the main features provided. There will also be booths, where candies, pop corn and various articles will be sold. The admission to this fair will be ten cents, and the attractions are well worth the cost.

J. B. Davidson, president of the Engineering society, has received word from J. A. L. Waddell that he will speak before the society some time before the next commencement. His subject will be, "American Engineering in Foreign Lands." Mr. Waddell expressed the desire of speaking several times upon his personal work.

IS ON KANSAS SOIL

Team Leaves Amid Ovation. Excursion Numbers 200.

Our team is now on Kansas soil, ready to wage the issue with the Jayhawkers and return with a glorious victory to their credit. Their departure yesterday morning over the Missouri Pacific, was marked by a display of loyalty and spirit that was indeed cheering to the men about to depart for a battle that will try them severely.

A fine crowd was there to give them a send-off, and so splendidly did they accomplish their purpose that Coach Booth led in giving the University yell.

A wholesale cutting of 9 o'clock classes occurred yesterday morning as the result of a movement started by the "Innocents" in collecting a crowd. Shortly before 9 o'clock a line of men emerging from the Science hall and marching in lock-step, gave notice that the team was not going to be allowed to depart without some notice. These served as a nucleus around which others collected until a long line of several hundred singing and yelling students executed their famous "zig-zag" all the way from the front gates of the campus to the M. P. depot.

At the depot the enthusiasm reached a climax. Every player, sub, and coach was cheered to a finish. Speeches were made by Coach Booth, ex-Captain Westover, Manager Buckner, Dr. Condra and Dr. Pound.

The train left at 9:15 and the demonstration ended with a cheer for the "whole team" as it pulled out with Booth's Cornhuskers on their way to meet Kansas University.

The team spent last night in Kansas City and proceeded to Lawrence this morning. They were scheduled to arrive there at about 10 o'clock, which would give them several hours to rest and work the stiffness out of their limbs after their long journey.

The student excursion train left last night over the Union Pacific. About 200 people were in the party and judging from the spirit manifested the team will have strong support at Lawrence. The band, some forty strong, was there and it will do some effective work in helping Nebraska enlarge her score.

Yesterday morning in chapel shortly after the team's departure Dr. Condra addressed the audience briefly. He advised those going on the excursion to be moderate and not try to stir up any trouble. He advised them to cheer the Kansas players when they came on the field, and expressed as his wish that they show a spirit of courtesy throughout. Speaking further he said that he hoped that nothing would occur to sever our relations with Kansas, as such an event would indeed be undesirable.

Lincoln vs. Omaha.

Lovers of football will be enabled to see the game at its best Saturday at F. & M. park, at 3 p. m., when the team from the Omaha high school will meet the invincible Lincoln high school team.

Both teams have played a 0 to 0 game with York, which fact lends increased interest to the game here.

Both teams are in excellent shape for the contest and will spare no effort to win. The double defeat of Omaha last year has aroused her to the highest pitch and she will do all she can to retrieve her lost honor, and Lincoln is as determined to hold the place she has won. The battle will be bitterly contested. Twenty-five cents lets you see it. Come.
