Editorial Remarks

No unreasonable demand is made in asking that 5,000 tickets be sold for the Illinois game. The student body can contribute toward making this game the best attended ever seen on our athletic field. The attraction is of surpassing importance, and such being the case it rests with us to do our share toward ensuring a fitting crowd. Each can act within his own sphere of influence, in rousing interest among friends and among the newspapers throughout the state. A recognition of our common interest and united effort could achieve a result in this enterprise that would be simply amazing.

The band did itself proud in chapel yesterday morning, making an admirable impression upon all who were fortunate in being present. There is no doubting the fact that we have a band that is a credit to the university and one that outranks all former bands. Natural talent combined with skillful training have given us a band whose equal it is hard to find in any western institution. Its presence at the game today in Lawrence will be one of the most potent factors in helping our team achieve glory against its opponents. It will doubtless create an impression there that will be a credit for itself and for our institution.

University students who are desirous of knowing the best places to patronize, can readily enlighten themselves by glancing through the advertising columns of The Nebraskan. We now have represented in our advertising the leading and most responsible business houses in the city where we assure our readers that they will receive the fairest consideration and treatment. It is a good policy for students to trade with the firms who patronize the college paper, as our class of advertisers are men who take an active interest in the University and are always willing to take extra pains in accommodating the students. Just bear this in mind, and patronize the men who support University enterprises.

We are glad that all misunderstanding with Kansas was wiped out before the team started for Lawrence. In regard to the protest they did all that could be asked, and we can only hope that the game can be played without any display of unfriendliness. We have every desire to preserve relations with Kansas, and it will certainly be no fault of ours if they are ever broken off.

We have a strong contingent there to stand up for Nebraska, and there is no doubt but that they will perform their part well. It is desirable though that they should avoid a clash with the Kansas rooters that might lead to unpleasantness. And we are sure that in chapel Friday morning that we may expect nothing of that sort. What they are there for is to enjoy the game, and support our men and if necessary prevent our team from being imposed upon.

There is no doubt of the team's ability to win, as Kansas is greatly outclassed. But whatever the result may be, it is hoped that those to whose portion defeat may fall, will bear it with good grace. This game will close a chapter of exciting events and we hope that the culmination of what is yet to come may result to the benefit and satisfaction of both institutions.

Glee Club Meeting.

What about the Glee club? Inquiries are constantly coming in regarding the Glee club, and but little satisfaction could hitherto be given. Last year the club was a great success and under the directorship of Professor Starr won a reputation that has made the University Glee club famous. Professor Starr has left, to be sure, but the club is still in existence and if all goes well we may hear from them in the near future. Many of the old voices are again in the club and every place was decided by sharp competition, and it is announced by the management that the club is made up of even better material than last year. Dr. Clements, who took an active part in directing the club last year, has charge, and although they have met for rehearsals only once a week there has been great progress made. Now, however, the club is looking for a director who can take the club and put on the finishing touches. Dr. Clements is one of the first tenors, where very heavy work falls on him, and he does not feel that he can take the directorship. Perhaps the most able man to be found anywhere is Professor Eames of the Conservatory of Music. Mr. Eames is so well known in the musical world that no qualification is necessary. With his directorship the possibilities of the club would be unlimited and his name at the head would certainly be a great advertisement wherever they went. But here is the difficulty. The club has arranged to purchase dress suits, which will involve some $600, and the management fail to see their way clear unless the University and friends of the club rally to their support. Certainly it is a worthy cause, and no one loyal to the University in all its phases will hesitate to lend their most hearty support when called upon.

The second year class in domestic science will write a paper on "The Preservation of Canned Foods."

The art exhibition held in the Woman's club rooms, in the basement of the public library building, is reported as very good. It is one of the best collections of photographs of the noted pictures in the west. Tickets are 25c, 15c and 10c.

The cooking school of the College Settlement began a week ago last Saturday. The city gas company has furnished a new stove and with the good equipments that have been purchased the class can be carried on very successfully. Miss Whedon has charge of the class. It is reported that quite a large number of children attended the first morning.

Three boxes of glass apparatus have just arrived for the department of animal husbandry in the agricultural school.

Girl's Winter Cloaks

Such a variety in materials, cuts and trimmings as has not been seen for years. The girls show more preference for the military styles than any other this season. Roman gold buttons; a touch of gilt brade or scarlet broadcloth, and deep military capes are the latest fad. Rich materials, glossy zibelines, smooth Kerseys, rough cheviots, and elegant velour, each with its suitable and clever decoration. Any length to suit the individual taste or requirements of figure from the short hip coat or down to the seven-eighths length.

Girls Military Coats $10.00 to $35.00

Other Styles $5.00 to $45.00
