Editorial Remarks

Tomorrow's Game.

Tomorrow our football men will don their fighting garb for a game that promises to be one of the most exciting contests ever witnessed on our field. There is just enough of uncertainty about it to create in us a breathless interest, and not until the whistle announcing the end of the last half is blown, will the feeling of doubt that enshrouds our minds be removed.

The men from Illinois have suffered defeat already on their western trip, and naturally they have an overwhelming desire to retrieve themselves before returning home. Herein lies danger for Nebraska. A defeated team especially one having strength and weight, is a as it is by motives of pride and even shame. Having a purpose to fight for, they are apt to lose all self-consciousness and entering into the spirit of the game, fight like demons for a touchdown.

But Nebraska also has something at stake. She has a glorious record to preserve and round out by a brilliant and effective victory. Our men are nerved up for this game and we are sure that they will play as they have never played before. Under the stimulus of the demonstration of a large body of enthusiastic rooters, we hope to see them fight their way down the field to the opposition goal, pushing before them their gallant opponents.

A victory over Illinois means much in the past few years. Our high position is universally recognized among colleges of the west, although two forms of recognition are evinced-generous and outspoken admiration for the record our team has made, and envious attempts to disparage its showing. Hence a victory over Illinois would have a pronounced effect in elevating us to a position that none of the western colleges has successfully aspired to.

And now finally. Let us extend to Illinois the same spirit of fairness that Blanchard and Florence Chapman will has been prevalent in all the former games on our field, and which has earned for us the hearty commendation are primarily for social purposes. The of those we have met. Illinois is a new division of loyalty between the Uniguest whom we have not previously had the pleasure of entertaining and we wish the visiting team to depart favorably impressed with Nebraskan customs and manners. This is the way that cordial relations are established. and thus the standard of collegiate athletics is elevated. Remember the caution give by those who have spoken authoritatively and try to observe them faithfully, cheering whenever proper and preserving silence when necessary.

The mass meeting yesterday morning was the last appeal to the students to come out to the game tomorrow and make the colminating event of the season a grand sucess. The presence of us all is needed in order to represent fully the sentiment and interest prevailing here in regard to our team. We are pleased to see such visible signs of spirit and interest exhibited by the students, and we hope that they will furnish their full share of the quota necessary to make this game yield the best financial results of any in the history of the institution.

This will be the last issue of The Nebraskan until after Thanksgiving. We have concluded to give our staff the full benefit of their vacation in order that they may have an opportunity to recuperate from their ardorous duties. Our next issue will be the Football Number, upon which we shall make a special effort in striving to give a full and complete history of our team and the men constituting it, besides a number of articles written especially for The Nebraskan dealing with the football situation in general.

NEITHER SIDE SCORES.

Seniors and Freshmen Combat in Vain for a Score.

The Seniors and Freshmen met on the gridiron yesterday afternoon to decide the championship, but after a hard game they had to leave the field without a score. This is a strange coincidence, the class of '04 last year having to play the championship game over with '06, neither side scoring in the first contest. The class of '04 finally won, but that is by no means an indication of the outcome this year. Yesterday's game was so close that even experienced football men were divided as to which outplayed the other. During the first half the ball was mostly in Secior territory, it being carried most of the way on penalties for Senior off-side plays. Here it swayed back and forth until it made its way to the centre of the field when time was called. The second half was even more exciting than the first. The Seniors slowly, but gradually advanced the ball into Freshman territory, but lost the ball on a fumble. The Freshmen were compelled to punt and by another bad fumble the Seniors lost the dangerous opponent to meet, actuated ball well up in their own territory, and the ball was pushed up to the Senior's 2-yard line, where they held the Freshmen for downs. By Newton's punt the ball was again taken toward the centre of the field, where, after much sawing back and forth, it rested when time was called.

Frequent end runs were attempted. but the ends were held down in excellent shape and no gains were made. The team work on both sides was good both teams being held for downs and punting was frequent. The game will have to be played over to decide the inter-class championship.

Academy Notes.

The Social Hour club will meet one week from next Friday at 3 p. m. The first ten in the alphabetic list of young women will have charge of the refreshments and Misses Helen Waugh, Jane be responsible for the program. These monthly meetings of the young women versity and the Academy is disintegrating in its effects and such organizations seem necessary to cement the union. Under its present efficient officers, Miss Le Gore and Miss Talbot, its bids fair to correct this disorganizing tendency. Were the Academy ten miles from the University the question of unity and Academy spirit would offer no difficulty. The committee on pennants has done a rushing business and finds it necessary to order more.

Have you noticed that the city merhants are displaying the Academy colors lavishly? Of course, some jealous competing school will probably answer that the display is in honor of Illinois University, but Academy people know
