Late Society Notes

There is to be held Friday evening at Fraternity hall an affair distinctly "Leap Year" in its character. The men so fortunate as to receive invites, are to be treated as the girls would be treated. They are to sit meekly at home where the fair ones will come for them, escort them to the hall, fill out their programs, do all the talking and after it is all over, they will be escorted home again by the "weaker sex." If they only knew it the maidens have an opportunity here to establish a very dangerous (to the men) precedent. Think what it would mean to be taken to the dance in a sumptuously appointed turnout, to have a hall beautifully decorated, to have refreshments worthy of the name, and finally to dine at one of the grill rooms, all at the expense of the fair ones. To reciprocate any not only once, would certainly be in order, but evidently the men are not fearing. More than one is meditating, deep in his heart, "Here's where Willie plays even. I'll keep her waiting about 'steen minutes when she calls. Won't I let her sit in the parlor and talk to one of my interesting frat brothers. Won't I tell her not to take too many dances? Won't I do things and things?" But she of the weaker sex is on to you, Willie. She knows you'll be on the front porch waiting for her when she comes. She knows if she takes all the dances and makes you sit every one out, you won't utter a word of protest. She knows things and things, and you know she knows. Of course the Friday night affair will be lots of fun for the fortunates and a cause of deep regret to the unfortunates.

A Pan-Hellenic meeting of the various sororities held at the Kappa house Saturday afternoon, resulted in a leap year party being decided upon and the date set for January 30th. No invitations to the men have yet been issued.

Pi Beta Phi gave an informal dancing party Friday evening. The fact that this is leap year was observed by the young ladies, who did the honors of the evening.

A Fine Poster

Another of P. J. Harrison's handsome posters on the bulletin board announces the Junior Prom. to be held at the Lincoln hotel the 5th of next month. Mr. Harrison's work has attained a reputation for neatness and attractiveness that assures further examples from his hand appreciative reception.

A Handsome Display

Miller & Paine are exhibiting in one of their large show windows a display of grains and other products from the State Farm that is attracting considerable attention. Rudge & Guenzel also have a unique display in the way of "Defender," the State Farm rival of "Challenger," the famous champion steer. These exhibits will doubtless prove excellent advertisements both for their displayers and the State Farm.
