DR. BESSEY HONORED

Invited to Fill Important Position at World's Fair

Dr. Bessey, dean of the botanical and biological department, of the University, has received an invitation to preside over the section of plant pathology at the program of the International congress at St. Louis. This is an honor of which he is certainly deserving, and a position that he can ably fill, adding much to the excellent representation of Nebraska in educational circles.

This invitation coming as it does from the International congress, asking Dr. Bessey to act as one of the official members, is only a reiteration of his world renown as the foremost botanist.

In connection with this letter a program of the congress was received, and the preliminary list of Europeans who will deliver addresses was enclosed. Some of the European scholars who have accepted invitations to take part in the program are: Professor Goebel, of the University of Munich; Professor Drude of the Institute of Technology at Dresden, and Professor Wiesner, of the University of Vienna. These are the most noted botanists of Europe, and their presence and ideas will certainly add to the excellence of the meeting.

Glee Club Will Tour.

The Glee Club reports good progress and will be soon getting under way for its customary trip. Director Eames is accomplishing good results in training the men, and the club bids fair to outdo all past showings. It meets twice a week for practice, on Tuesday and Saturday. All the places are full, several new men having been taken in recently. The trip will be made about the time of the spring vacation, and the itinerary will include Omaha, Beatrice and other places not yet decided upon.
