A new bulletin board is being prepared for convocation notices. It will be placed just inside of the southern entrance to the main building.

Professor Caldwell is working on the courses for American history next year, which will be entirely rearranged and readjusted from their present standing.

W. A. Smead is visiting his brother Howard Smead, at the Delta Upsilon house. Mr. Smead graduated from the U. S. naval academy at Annapolis on February 1st.

Professor Fossler is preparing a book to be used in the third year German classes next fall. It will be called, "The Practical German Conversation Book." Ginn & Co., of Boston, are the publishers. Miss Kingsbury is also editing "Flachsmann als Erzieher," for the same house, which will be used in the second year classes.

To correct a misunderstanding concerning the Non-Com's Hop, The Nebraskan is requested to again announce the date. The Hop will be held at Fraternity hall March 11. Eddie Walt's orchestra will furnish the music, and the committee in charge is doing everything possible to insure the success of the entertainment.

Freshmen Laws Elect.

The following officers were elected by the first year law class at the meeting Monday:

President, P. F. O'Gara.
Vice President, Morrison.
Secretary, Johnson.
Senator, Davis.
Sergeant at arms, Barta.

The election was a quiet one, Mr. O'Gara being the unanimous choice of the class for president and all the others being elected on the first ballot.

For New Stereopticon Views.

The American history department has been busily engaged in discussing the advisability of introducing a number of stereopticon slides for active use in that department. They have already collected more than 200, which deal with the colonial, revolutionary, Jacksonian and civil war periods, chiefly, and the hopes of their plans will be materialized. The first use of them will be next Friday in course 2, under Professors Aylsworth and Persinger. The lectures will be thrown open to the public, so that those interested in the work can attend.

This is a great addition to our history department and it is to be hoped that as the University enlarges the recitation rooms may be equipped with lanterns.
