College Debating World.

Virginia recently defeated the University of Pennsylvania.

The other annual California-Stanford debate is held in San Francisco.

Idaho won a brilliant victory over the University of Washington.

At Wisconsin the inter-department debate is one of the big events of the year.

The Yale-Princeton debate will be held at Princeton on March 25. The government's recognition of Panama will be argued.

A $40 prize has been put up for the Brown man who makes the best showing in the preliminary for the Johns Hopkins debate.

Of the cases presented by Harvard and Yale in the December debate on trade unions a stenographic report, with lithographs, is being published by the Yale Debating association.

A recent number of "The Weekly Columbian," Columbia University, Washington, D. C., is almost entirely given up to the two debates now on with the University of Virginia, and with Georgetown University.

In the Carnot debate, the annual California-Leland Stanford battle, victory went to California. The audience was too large for Harmon gymnasium. Dr. Ross, when at Stanford, helped train the Carnot contestants.

Debates at Exposition.

The subjects for debate and the governing conditions in the national oratorical contest at the St. Louis exposition have been definitely announced. They are such as to tax all the forensic powers of each competitor. The contest will be held in the Hall of Congress at 2:30 p. m., June 22. Not until 8 a. m. of the same day will the contestant know what phase of the subject he is to discuss. This gives practically six hours to prepare the speech and will test ability to make an extemporaneous address as well as general knowledge of the question. The general theme of the discussion will be the "Improvement of City Government in the United States." This is divided into seven different subjects as follows:

- (1) "The Growth and Cosmopolitan Character of American Cities."
- (2) "The Power and Methods of the City Boss."
- (3) "The Application of the Civil Service Merit System to Municipal Affairs."
- (4) "Independent Action in City Politics."
- (5) "The Adaptability of German Municipal Methods to American Cities."
- (6) "The Franchise System vs. Public Ownership."
- (7) "Have Democratic Principles Been a Failure in Municipal Government?"

Speeches will be limited to twelve minutes. The judges will be men of national repute in municipal affairs.

The Mathematical Seminar.

The Mathematical Seminar will meet on Saturday, March 12, at 7:30 p. m., in M. 302.

The following is the program:
Univis formula for strength of current, C. K. Payne.
Imaginary in analytic geometry, E. W. Davis.
Physical solutions of the general equation of the ninth degree. (a) Segner's mechanical solution; (b) Boys' dynamical solution; (c) Meslin's hydrostatic solution; (d) Lucas' electric solution.

R. E. MORITZ.
