FAIRFIELD IS DEAD

Pioneer Nebraska Educator Dies at Oberlin.

Was Responsible For Much of the University's Success.

Word was received at the university yesterday morning of the death of ex-Chancellor Edmund B. Fairfield at Oberlin, Ohio, last Thursday evening. Dr. Fairfield was the second chancellor of the university of Nebraska, being called to that position in 1875 and remaining for several years. To him is due in a large degree, the prosperity which has marked the later development of the institution, as he was responsible for the early state appropriations which started the university on its career. At the time of his coming to Nebraska the university was but two or three years old, and struggling for its very existence. By the hardest kind of individual and personal work, Dr. Fairfield carried the school through the hard times of the seventies. To him is due the credit for the establishment of farmers' institutes, which have done so much for scientific agriculture in the state, and which have resulted in the now famous Nebraska State College of Agriculture.

Dr. Fairfield was born at Parkersburg, West Virginia, in August 1821, thus being 83 years of age at his death. Although of southern origin he was a forceful and energetic worker in the cause of abolition preceding and during the civil war. At all times during his life he was active in religious work and held several charges as minister in the Congregational church. During President Harrison's administration he was United States consul at Lyons, France, and held other important political offices during his career. His collegiate education was obtained at Oberlin college, from which he graduated in 1842. He was twice married and left seven children.

Memorial services for the ex-chancellor will, of course, be held at the university soon. As yet no definite arrangements have been made, but will be announced in the near future. The wide acquaintance which Dr. Fairfield enjoyed, and the universal respect with which he was regarded, make his decease generally mourned throughout Nebraska. He will be buried at Oberlin.

Men's Mass Meeting.

Hon. W. J. Bryan will address the men's meeting at the Oliver tomorrow afternoon at 4 p. m. His subject will be "The Prince of Peace." Mrs. Murray Rector will render some choice solos.

This promises to be the largest meeting of the year and you should be on hand early to get good seats. Doors will open at 3:30 P. m. Admission free to men.

Chancellor Will Talk.

The second meeting for the year of the University Pedagogical Club will be held next Wednesday evening in U. 212, at 7:30 o'clock. Chancellor Andrews will address the meeting on the subject "Home Manual Training." All instructors and students interested in educational work are invited to be present.

BELLEVUE HERE TODAY

Presbyterians Expect to Put up Stiff Game.

This afternoon the team from Bellevue college will test their strength against the Cornhuskers. A hard game is not anticipated by the latter, but the well-known spirit of the collegians is expected to furnish an interesting contest from the spectator's point of view. The Bellevue line-up is not known at the time of our going to press, but a number of changes are scheduled for the Cornhuskers. It is desired to save the men as much as possible for the Illinois game on Thanksgiving day, and Denslow will take Captain Benedict's place at right end. Barwick will go in at Bender's place at right. Cotton will be in at maul place at right tackle, having almost recovered from last Saturday's game. Craig will be at right half. Fifty cents will be charged for seats whether reserved or not.

Practice last night consisted only of punting and signal work, no scrimmage work being done, for fear of injuring the men before the game today. The line-up is not definitely determined as yet, but it will be shifted a good deal in order that a good number may be given a chance. Bellevue last year got through our line for good gains quite a number of times. Their man Moore is a good football player, and is apt to get away for a touch-down at any time. The game today will be the last chance the rooters will have until Thanksgiving, and they should be out en masse.

Other games scheduled for today are as follows:

- Minnesota vs. Northwestern, at Chicago.
- Yale vs. Harvard, at New Haven.
- Annapolis vs. P. L., at Annapolis.
- Lafayette vs. Lehigh, at Easton.
- State vs. Geneva, at State.
- Dickinson vs. Ursinus, at Carlisle.
- Syracuse vs. West Point, at West Point.
- Wesleyan vs. Williams, at Williams-town.

PLAY PROMISES MUCH

Dramatic Club's Enterprise an Assured Success.

The Dramatic Club's play "Everyman," which will be produced at the Oliver theatre, December 1, is already attracting much attention. The play was produced at the University of Chicago last year, and proved a great success. But little is known concerning the play at Nebraska, however, and the following facts will consequently prove of much interest:

In America "Everyman" has been welcomed with quite as much favor as in England. Lengthy engagements have been played in New York, Boston, Chicago, and other large cities, and special performances have been given at Harvard, Yale, Chicago, and other universities.

In "Everyman" we have one of these old plays, so reverently composed, and religiously performed by the monks. Anyone who has seen this beautiful morality play will readily understand how these servants of the Lord, in the dark ages of the twelfth to the sixteenth centuries, regarded their performance of the play as conscientiously as they did their prayers. Many of the verses have a sort of haunting music, and, were persons to see it played, or read it, fifty times, they would obtain more good from, and like it better each time. The character of Everyman represents humanity in general. He is summoned by Death, at the command of God, to leave this world as he has sinned and abused the privileges that were given him; he is much alarmed at this unexpected command to appear before God with his book of reckoning, and is also afraid of the long journey alone, and calls upon his friends to accompany him. He first summons Fellowship, then Kindred, then Goods-and-Riches, and then Good Deeds. They all refuse except Good Deeds who is so weak she cannot move. She sends him, however, to Knowledge who leads him to Confession. When Confession has shriven Everyman and given him the cloak of Penitence Strong, Good Deeds is made whole and can walk and go. Everyman then sets out on his pilgrimage accompanied by Strength, Secretion, Five Wits, Knowledge, and Good Deeds. At the brink of the grave, however, all others but Good

SPLENDID NUMBER

Special Football Number of the Nebraskan to be a Daisy.

Elegant Illustrations Will Make Valuable Souvenir.

The Special Football number of the Nebraskan, now in course of preparation, and which will be on sale Wednesday morning, will prove to be the best thing of the kind ever attempted at Nebraska. The special articles already on hand show evidence of unusual interest and originality, and the illustrations will be of supreme excellence. The magazine will be printed on a superior quality of book-paper in order to show up the cuts well. Pictures of all the players, matching the one of Captain Benedict, printed in the Nebraskan at the time of the Minnesota game, together with large etched cuts of Coaches Booth and Westover and a striking one of Jack Best with his little boy, will make the number a great souvenir of the season of 1904.

The cover is designed by DeWitt Hansen, ex '03 and will be reproduced in scarlet on white paper. Mr. Hansen's work is too well known to need comment, but the cover of the Thanksgiving Nebraskan will make as striking a poster as ever graced the wall of a sorority girl's room.

Articles in the number will be by Chancellor Andrews, Professors Fogg, Wyer, and others, Dean Pound, Coach Booth, John D. Rice, last year's editor of the Nebraskan, and members of the present staff. Miss Leta Stetler contributes a football story. More definite announcement will be made in Tuesday's paper.

The magazines will take the place of Wednesday's paper and will be on sale at the news stands of Lincoln and the university book stores, as well as various places on the campus. At the game Thursday it may be had at various places on the grounds. A large sale is anticipated, and, in spite of the great expense involved, the price will be but 10 cents.

IMPORTANT STATISTICS.

Proportions of Men and Women in Different Colleges.

The last university calendar shows that in the college of literature, science and arts, the proportion of women is increasing, while in the industrial college the proportion of men is increasing, there being 657 women to 291 men in the former and 28 women to 425 men in the latter. This does not take account of the students in the two and three year schools, but includes only proper college students. Leaving out "conditioned" and "unclassified" students, the numbers are as follows:

	Lit. Coll.	Indus. Coll.
SENIORS
Men	59	31
Women	82	7
JUNIORS
Men	31	52
Women	83	2
SOPHOMORES
Men	53	99
Women	155	7
FRESHMEN
Men	87	184
Women	165	4
Totals	715	386
Adding "conditioned" and "unclassified":
CONDITIONED
Men	25	38
Women	13	0
UNCLASSIFIED
Men	36	21
Women	159	8
Grand totals	948	463
